A NEW BOOK

[will be published April 4]

By the Author of

Mary Cary

THE MAN IN LONELY LAND

THIS new story, by Kate Langley Bosher, is as restful as a trip to some quiet spot in tidewater Virginia, where life still moves slowly, where old customs still linger, where high, sunny, flower-covered walls protect us. Only a portion, however, takes place in the country; but even in New York its influence is felt in the character of the sweet girl who has been molded by it. Disillusionized with society, the hero has unconsciously become selfish, and did not realize how lonely and empty his life really was until he met the heroine. There is a child in the story who has all the winsome charm of Mary Cary.

With Frontispiece. Post 8vo, Cloth, $1.00 net

Which examines the Referendum and Initiative, the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, the question of government control of corporations, and other pressing political problems, some of which will be the critical issues of the approaching election. 75 cents net; postage extra.

Suggestion and Psychotherapy

By GEORGE W. JACOBY, M.D.

Dr. Jacoby, one of the most eminent of New York neurologists, has in this book popularized for the intelligent layman a subject about which every one is talking, but which is as intricate as it is important.

With illustrations. $1.50 net; postpaid $1.65.

Plays of August Strindberg

Translated with an Introduction by Edwin Björkman

Strindberg, the foremost figure in Scandinavian literature to-day, and admittedly one of the greatest of living dramatists, is represented in this volume by three of his most characteristic plays—"The Dream Play"; "The Link," in one act; and "The Dance of Death," Parts I. and II., a drama of tremendous power, generally considered his masterpiece.

With portrait. $1.50 net; postpaid $1.65.

The Abolition Crusade and Its Consequences

By HILARY A. HERBERT, LL.D.

With a Preface by James Ford Rhodes

Mr. Herbert, of Alabama, Secretary of the Navy under President Cleveland, who won distinction in the Confederate Army, believes that a wide-spread early sentiment in the South against slavery would have finally led to some form of peaceful emancipation but for the fanaticism of the Northern abolitionists, and the counter-fanaticism their words and acts set ablaze. The book is a graphic study of abolitionism which, in the writer's treatment, is given a new and even more weighty significance than it usually receives.

To Be Published Latter Part of March and Early April

Over the Pass

By FREDERICK PALMER

Author of "Danbury Rodd," etc.

This is by far Mr. Palmer's most important book to date. Its scene, mainly Arizona; its leading characters, Jack Wingfield, a young Easterner sent West for his health; Pete Leddy, "a bad man of the old school" with six notches on his gun-handle; Mary Ewold, a lovely young woman of "Little Rivers."

The Turnstile

By A. E. W. MASON

The romance of "The Turnstile" begins when a young girl on an Argentina estancia sends to an explorer she has never seen, on his departure "farthest South," a cablegram of encouragement, unsigned. The two meet later, when he is fighting for distinction in public life. Their love story, complicated by the situations that arise from the mystery surrounding her birth and from his struggle against the pull of a passion for exploration is the central theme in a novel intensely dramatic and absorbing.

THE GREEN VASE

By WILLIAM R. CASTLE, JR.

Through an accident the heroine of this story loses her memory completely.

Her past life is blotted out and she begins a new existence, under a new name, and with a different husband.

She has not the breath of a suspicion, you understand, that she had ever been anyone else, and ever had another husband.

This is a remarkable case of "dual personality." How is this woman, with two lives and two husbands, one and the same person?

What does the law say about it?

What do her two husbands say, when they discover the secret?

NOTICE OF PROSECUTION

¶ The Publishers of Harold Bell Wright's books hereby give notice that they control absolutely, the dramatic rights of each of Mr. Wright's books. Any unlawful use made of any of them by any individual or theatrical company means sure and vigorous prosecution and swift justice under our copyright laws. Several attempts by small theatrical companies to use one of Mr. Wright's books for dramatic production brought such dire and disastrous results that we trust there will be no further infringement of copyright.

¶ The Shepherd of the Hills has been authoritatively dramatized and will be produced in Chicago early this spring for the first time on any stage.

¶ The Winning of Barbara Worth will have its first dramatic production in New York—probably this fall. Arrangements have been made for an elaborate dramatization."

¶ Negotiations are pending for dramatic productions of "The Calling of Dan Matthews" and "That Printer of Udell's."

¶ Our Campaign of Advertising will continue with an additional expenditure of more than $20,000 during the present year—1912—and "The Winning of Barbara Worth" will continue the Best Selling Book in All the World because it is a National Epic and the ideal American novel.

¶ Our Advertising Campaign Next Year—1913—will be another record breaker with the enormous expenditure of, approximately, $100,000. "The Winning of Barbara Worth" will still hold its place over every other "best seller." With colors flying and liberal advertising space "Barbara Worth" will continue to greet you in the year of 1914.

¶ Harold Bell Wright is a young man—39 years of age. He is ambitious by nature, strong in body and hopeful in spirit. We believe in his books. We believe in his life. We believe in his ministry. His sincerity of purpose is our greatest incentive to supplement his work by giving his books the widest possible circulation. Every dealer selling a Harold Bell Wright book makes a profit plus a pleased customer and satisfaction to himself.

The autobiography of Holland's most distinguished novelist, poet and playwright, and the story of his social ideals. Net, $1.25.

Counsel for the Defense

By LEROY SCOTT

Author of "To Him That Hath," etc.

Imagine a young girl returning to her home in the Middle West on the eve of a civic celebration, chiefly in honor of her father, to find him indicted for bribery and no lawyer willing to take the case. This is the tragic situation into which Katherine West steps, and in this story Mr. Scott shows how a womanly woman may meet a man's problem without losing any of her feminine charm. The story has a tremendous appeal on account of its real dramatic strength and its vigorous championing of the right of a woman to take her place in the vital work of modern life.

Frontispiece in colors. Fixed price, $1.20

The Girondin

By HILAIRE BELLOC

A remarkable new tale by Mr. Belloc in which he tells of the love and adventures of a French artilleryman in the French Revolution. Mr. Belloc himself served in the French Army, and he adds to a whimsical humor and fine story-telling skill a first-hand knowledge of camp-life and military affairs.

Frontispiece in colors. Fixed price, $1.25.

Red Eve

By H. RIDER HAGGARD, author of "She," etc.

In this tale of the Middle Ages, Rider Haggard has given us a picture in his vivid and striking way of the days when feudalism was in the land and every man held his life and love in the strength of his sword arm. Four illustrations in color by A. C. Michael. Fixed price, $1.20.

The First Million Mark Passed at Full Stride

What CORRA HARRIS says of

"The Harvester"

IN a remarkable review a page and a half long in The Independent, CORRA HARRIS, Author of "The Circuit Rider's Wife" and "The Recording Angel," thus defines the extraordinary charm of Mrs. Porter's book:

"Mrs. Gene Stratton-Porter's new novel is an illustration of the harmony and intimacy which does rightly exist between a man and a forest. In 'The Harvester' she has not only dramatized, but proved the purifying and preservative forces that are always present and predominant in such a situation. This is why the story is so popular. It is utterly simple, nothing in the plot to appeal to morbid interest or curiosity. We really prefer what is good and clean in man and in nature if we can get it portrayed in fiction."

"There is not a financier in Wall Street, not an artisan, nor grocer-man, nor clerk in any city who reads this story who will not discover in himself some dim relationship, buried beneath the dry and dead leaves of commercialism, to this medicine man, who lived with his dog in a cabin in the green shade upon the banks of his singing water. A vacation likeness to be sure, for few men of to-day are sufficiently hardy in mind or body to endure such an existence longer than three weeks. But that is the fault of our kind of civilization, not of the life portrayed in 'The Harvester.'"

¶ The first million copies of Mrs. Gene Stratton-Porter's great nature romances have been sold.

¶ This milestone has been passed at full stride. "The Harvester," we firmly believe, is just beginning. Every day its unique appeal is being made to hundreds of readers who are glad to get into the refreshing outdoor atmosphere and wholesome spirit of this story. In its fifth large printing, "The Harvester" has reached 172,100 copies, and a sixth edition, now going to press, will send this figure well beyond 200,000.

¶ This is a seven months' record.

¶ "Freckles" and "A Girl of the Limberlost," the other members of this delightful trio, are selling better to-day than when they were published six and three years ago respectively.

¶ Another 500,000 will be added to Mrs. Porter's record for 1912.

¶ Are you in the advance guard or the reserves?—the one million or the 500,000?

THE MOUNTAIN GIRL

By PAYNE ERSKINE

The scene of Payne Erskine's new novel is laid in the Blue Ridge of North Carolina, and a beautiful mountain girl, untrained and uneducated, is the central figure. In firmness of character, innate refinement, pride of race and self, and deep spirituality, Cassandra stands a heroine splendidly imagined and brilliantly portrayed. The mountains form a romantic setting to the drama of love and passion, and their beauty, as pictured by the author, will stir the emotions of the reader. Because of its genuine human interest and strength of characterization, "The Mountain Girl" is deserving of the wide audience it will doubtless obtain.

DAVE PORTER ON CAVE ISLAND

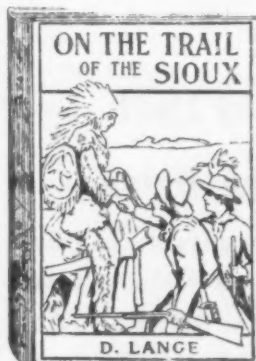

Or A Schoolboy's Mysterious Mission

Eighth volume of "Dave Porter Series"

By EDWARD STRATEMEYER

Illustrated by H. RICHARD BOEHM. 12mo. Cloth. Price, $1.25

David Porter is again found with his friends at "Oak Hall," and these good fellows as well as good students are making the most of their life at the famous fitting-school. But in the Christmas holidays a most mysterious robbery occurs, and Dave and two good chums pursue the thieves to a tropical island, where exciting adventures take place before the booty is recovered.

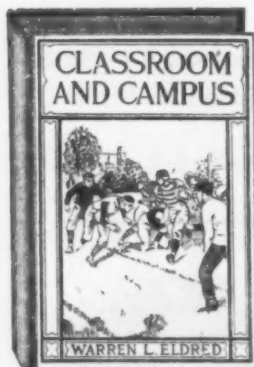

ON THE TRAIL OF THE SIOUX

The Adventures of Two Boy Scouts on the Minnesota Frontier

By D. LANGE

Illustrated by J. W. FERGUSON KENNEDY. 12mo. Cloth. Price, Net, $1.00; Postpaid, $1.10

This story was written by a successful and prominent educator to satisfy the insistent demand of active boys for an "Indian Story," as well as to help them understand what even the young endured in the making of our country. Many stories of this nature cause young readers to get false ideas of both history and Indian nature, and Mr. Lange is especially well qualified to guard against such errors, while at the same time finely carrying out his primary purpose.

CLASSROOM AND CAMPUS

Third volume of "St. Dunstan Series"

By WARREN L. ELDRED

Illustrated. Large 12mo. Cloth. Price, $1.50

A fine, strong story of school honor and the friendship of high-minded boys. A group of likely lads entering upon the second year at "St. Dunstan's" are led to believe that things might be much better at their school, excellent as it is, if there were a higher standard of student honor and obligation, and less of the "sporty" tendency in connection with athletics.

THE CHILDREN IN THE LITTLE OLD RED HOUSE

First volume of "Little Red House Series"

By AMANDA M. DOUGLAS

Illustrated by LOUISE WYMAN. 12mo. Cloth. Price, Net, $1.00; Postpaid, $1.10

The very title gives promise of a good story, and when we know that there are eight of these children, as loving as they are lively, there can be no doubt of the good things in store for the reader. Their efforts to help the dearest of mothers, their merriment, which no poverty can subdue, and the great and well-deserved good fortune which comes to them, move us in rapid succession to sympathy, amusement, and delight.

PRUE'S LITTLE FRIENDS

Fifth volume of "The Prue Books"

By AMY BROOKS

Illustrated by the Author. Large 12mo. Cloth. Price, $1.00

This will interest all boys and girls from six to ten, because from the first page to the last something is happening. The story opens with the coming to town of a circus, that object of special delight to all children. A boy from the neighborhood appears as a rider in the circus, having by courage and honest determination proved a remarkable exception to most boys who choose such a career.

FIVE NEW OLIVER OPTIC BOOKS

Price of each volume, 60 cents.

The series is completed by the addition of twenty titles not previously offered at popular price, including five more "Optic" serials for the first time offered in book form, with new illustrations and individual cover designs. These are:

- 66 The Young Hermit
- 67 Three Young Silver Kings
- 68 Among the Missing
- 69 The Prisoners of the Cave
- 70 Always in Luck

THE AMANDA M. DOUGLAS NOVELS

Twenty-four titles. A new illustrated edition, with frontispieces by JOHN GOSS, and picture wrappers in photogravure.

Price of each volume, 60 cents

SPECIAL NET PRICES TO THE TRADE

Historical novels, "country philosophy" novels, and problem novels: all have their day and pass out. But human life, love, and experience are constant factors and constantly repeated, and the interest of a masterpiece of really human fiction never wanes. The novels of Amanda M. Douglas never fail to charm, because she comprehends human life with the grasp of genius and can present it with the spell that has been the birthright of only a few great novelists.

Love in a Mask

A HERETOFORE UNPUBLISHED MANUSCRIPT BY BALZAC

A daring manuscript in which he, in true Balzacian style, justifies a startling perversion of the common-law. "Love in a Mask" cannot fail to have a strong interest for all lovers of the great French writer. A gift of the author to the Duchess de Dino; buried in her library for fifty years, it passed in a direct line to the French publisher. Translated by Alice M. Ivmy. In this edition, "Love in a Mask" appears for the first time in America.

Cloth. Price, $1.00 net.

Lady Eleanor: Lawbreaker

BY ROBERT BARR

A novel in a new field by the author of the "Countess Tekla," "A Woman Intervenes" and "In the Midst of Alarms." A gay little flashlight on Richard Sheridan's time, character and circle. Nothing could be sweeter or more wholesome. A love story pure and simple, there are tears and laughter in "Lady Eleanor: Lawbreaker," in addition to the charming historic background.

Cloth. Price, $1.00 net.

BY MABEL D. CARRY

Every pleasure-loving woman, every mother, every thoughtful man should read "Betty Moore's Journal" as soon as it leaves the press. By Mabel D. Carry of Chicago, a woman well known in the social world. It treats briskly with feeling and power, and from an important viewpoint, a subject of the greatest social interest—i. e., the rights of motherhood among the wealthy indifferent.

NEW NOVELS

BRILLIANT

UNUSUAL

Ready March 20th

Oliver's Kind Women

By PHILIP GIBBS, author of "The Street of Adventure," "The Weak Man and His Folly," etc.

Oliver the chief character comes under the influence of many women of high and low degree and is the strongest and most analytical portrait study yet drawn by the author. He is the type of many young men of promise of today and his career will be followed by amusement, sympathy, and interest. "Oliver's Kind Women" is a brilliant novel and the cleverest work of the writer who has already been marked out by the critics as one of the few who are striking out along a new and characteristic line.

Frontispiece in color. Cloth, 12mo, picture wrapper. Price, $1.25 net.

Ready April 6th

Ebb and Flow

By MRS. IRWIN W. SMART, author of "One Life and the Next."

A real and touching story, written with power and discernment, it deals not with the extremes of character nor life as it is often imagined for purposes of dramatic effect but with people for the most part of familiar character and temperament and with affairs of life and love that enter into the ordinary kind of existence. A strong and unusual story.

Cloth, 12mo. Price, $1.25 net.

Ready April 20th

The Romance of a State Secret

By WINEFRIDE TRAFFORD-TAUNTON, author of "The Silent Dominion," "The Threshold," etc.

A historical romance of great power and interest of the time of Charles II. It deals with a plot to secure succession to the throne for a son of Charles born during his exile. A thrilling story of love and political intrigue.

Cloth, 12mo. Price, $1.25 net.

Ready May 4th

The Stolen Bride

By W. H. WILLIAMSON, author of "The Traitor's Wife," "A Family of Influence," etc.

A powerful story of Russia in the time of Peter the Great. The author has already made a place for himself as a novelist and his new book cannot but enhance his reputation. "The Stolen Bride" is full of lively incidents and the excitement never flags, the plot thickens on every page. As the ending is peaceful and delightful in every way, the story has been worked out with a delicacy and cleverness that cannot fail to delight all who read it.

Cloth, 12mo, picture wrapper. Price, $1.25 net.

DANA ESTES & COMPANY—ContinuedBIOGRAPHY*JOHN LAVERY AND HIS WORK

By WALTER SHAW-SPARROW. With an introduction by R. B. CUNNINGHAME GRAHAM. A companion volume to "Frank Brangwyn and His Work." Illustrated with reproductions in color, Rembrandtgravures and collotypes. This unique volume is the work of one of the foremost artists of the world whose paintings are to be found in all the great galleries both here and abroad and whose fame has recently been further advanced by being commissioned to paint the portraits of the King and Queen of Great Britain. Like Mr. Brangwyn, Mr. Lavery has been invited by the Italian Government to contribute a portrait of himself to the Uffizi Gallery of Florence, the zenith of an artist's ambition. Mr. Shaw-Sparrow furnishes a vivid and sympathetic record of Mr. Lavery's remarkable career devoting special attention to his early life. Cloth, 4to. Price, $3.50 net.

MY LADY CASTLEMAINE

By PHILIP SERGEANT, author of "The Empress Josephine," "Cleopatra of Egypt," etc. With a photogravure frontispiece and 17 illustrations. My Lady Castlemaine, or Barbara Villiers as she is best known, has been described as the finest woman in England and more often painted than any woman who has decorated the English Court. This astonishing beauty impoverished the Privy Purse of Charles II. . . . yet she largely enriched his peerage, and made political history, and was perhaps the greatest termagant that ever ruled a king. Cloth, 8vo, gilt, gilt top. Price, $3.50 net.

TRAVEL AND HISTORYCOSTUMES, TRADITIONS AND SONGS OF SAVOY

By ESTELLA CANZIANI. With 50 illustrations in color and numerous line engravings. This volume breaks fresh ground in an original and charming manner. Miss Canziani's descriptions of Savoyard scenery, customs and manners; her transcriptions of Savoyard folk-stories and songs (with music); and her extraordinary accurate and picturesque drawings (reproduced in every case from originals in Tempera and Water Color) are contributory to a book which is in its way unique. Large 4to, cloth gilt, gilt top. Price, $7.50 net.

A YEAR WITH THE GAEKWAR OF BARODA

By REV. EDWARD ST. CLAIR WEEDEN, M.A. With a photogravure frontispiece and 25 full-page half-tone illustrations. The Maharajah Gaekwar of Baroda, who is the wealthiest of all India's rulers, has been for some time a much discussed person. Mr. Weedon was the first European to stay in the Royal Palace of Baroda, and to be admitted to the privacy of the Maharajah's family circle, and he has made good use of his exceptional opportunities. The pomp and pageantry of an Oriental Court and the public and formal amusement of the Rajah are vividly described. Cloth, 8vo, gilt, gilt top. Price, $3.50 net.

AN ARTIST IN CORFU

By SOPHIE ATKINSON. With 14 full-page colored illustrations. While Miss Atkinson begins her story with the legend of Nausica and all incidents connected with the history of the beautiful island, she is chiefly interested in the Corfu of to-day as a place of infinite peace and beauty. The remarkable and exceedingly handsome colored illustrations are a strong feature of the work. Cloth, 4to. Cover design and end papers by the author. Price, $4.50 net.

TANTE

By Anne Douglas Sedgwick

The Philadelphia Public Ledger says:

"There are in English literature few studies of character that equal Anne Douglas Sedgwick's delineation of 'Tante.'"

The Boston Herald says:

"A novel so finely conceived and wrought out that it bears upon every page the stamp of greatness."

The Chicago Tribune says:

"The habitual fiction reader will look long before finding a book so subtle and so fascinating."

SPRING ANNOUNCEMENT

THE NEW NAVY OF THE UNITED STATES

By M. L. STEBBINS

With an introduction and short history of the new navy by Admiral Dewey. In photographing new battleships on their trial trips for the Navy Department, Mr. Stebbins has accumulated a collection of pictures that cannot be duplicated outside the archives at Washington.

This book is a photographic chronicle of the modern United States Navy from the monster Delaware to the smallest Cutter. It contains over 150 photographs of battleships, destroyers, cruisers, revenue cutters, colliers and transports, with designs of vessels in the course of construction and which will not be put in commission for three years.

This pictorial record is supplemented by an accurate account of displacement, equipment, complement of men, speed, armament and a brief history of each vessel. It is absolutely up to date as it will contain data and pictures of trials and maneuvers to be held in march, 1912.

THE TRIANGLE CUPID

By CHARLES ALDEN SELTZER

Author of "The Two-Gun Man," etc.

In this book Mr. Seltzer again displays his mastery of Western fiction.

Human nature is all the same—on a cattle ranch or on Broadway. For example there's "Two Gun" Harlan who is steel against anything except a pretty woman's tears. That's the beginning of his "reformation." Then there's "Lon Dexter" who won his case by stealing a horse in a country where the horse thief usually wins nothing but a hemp necktie. And the picture of "Mexico" Lennehan—blood of an Irish father and a Mexican mother fighting for the mastery. These are just snapshots from Mr. Seltzer's latest work.

"THE TRIANGLE CUPID" is composed of seven snappy stories of the cattle country, which afford the reader an opportunity to renew the acquaintance of some very interesting characters introduced by Mr. Seltzer in his other books.

FOOT LOOSE AND FREE

By STEPHEN CHALMERS

Author of "The Trail of a Tenderfoot," etc.

In the opening chapter the reader makes the acquaintance of Schackles, a "slave in the treadmill of commerce," who finally rebelled against New York one hot summer night, slipped his cable of cares and sailed for the port of frolic and fun. Before the end of the first chapter, the reader unconsciously feels the crazy, restless enthusiasm of youth that took a respectable young man on a Quixotic hunt for real life, and finally joins the author in unfurling the flag of freedom with the motto:—"I don't know where I'm going but I'm on my way."

Back to the World

Translated by L. M. LEGGATT

CHAMPOL

As a psychological study, "Back to the World" is a powerful and moving tale of more than ordinary interest and significance.

The character of Henriette is a masterpiece of drawing. Although her erstwhile remaining companions pass through a fiery ordeal of bodily suffering whose end is the blessedness of death, Henriette, the quondam Sister St. Gabriel, is tried in the furnace of a more subtle fire—the influence of a reawakened love—the importunities of a worldly, though devoted mother, and all the insidious temptations of an environment, the luxury of which is sapping at her spiritual strength, and almost stilling in her heart the faint and fainter echoes of her cloistered past.

WROTE

Mr. Kauffman's series of stories about "the girl who goes wrong" seem to me in the main truthful pictures of actual conditions, and therefore likely to be useful. They point out clearly the habitual neglect of their duty toward girls by parents, schools and churches; and they describe vividly the dangers which beset the ignorant and irresponsible girl, and the girl whose family is in the depths of poverty.

"A Powerful and Important Story"

THE BLIND ROAD

By HUGH GORDON

12mo. Price, $1.20 net

This is an intense story of married life. It develops in a logical fashion and shows the various effects produced upon a man and woman under certain conditions of modern metropolitan life. The descriptions of the life of to-day are so accurate and vivid that the story reads like a revelation of actual experience. At times, when vital situations call for it, the style is extremely frank and unequivocal.

"There's Many a Good Laugh Here"

THE MYSTERY OF No. 47

By J. STORER CLOUSTON

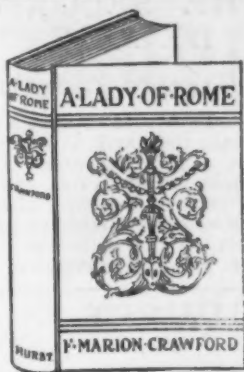

Author of "The Lunatic at Large," etc.

12mo. Price, $1.10 net.

The ingenious story of mystery is at once a laughable travesty of the modern detective "thriller" and an exceedingly good little detective yarn itself, and is told with delightful humor and literary skill. Ludicrously and yet plausibly, by rapid consecutive stages, there is built up, upon a trifling domestic contretemps as a basis, a tremendous fabric of crime and horror, till the baffled reader knows not whether— But why describe a pleasant perplexity that the reader may experience for himself.

LIVE BOOKS ON LIVE TOPICS

Camping for Boys

H. W. GIBSON

Illustrated. Library buckram, postpaid, $1.00

"A most comprehensive and practical little volume, covering the subject from every point of view. The author has not only given his attention to the various phases of camp life such as equipment, putting up tents, food, making the camp-fire, amusements for fair weather and foul, and athletics and water sports, but he includes chapters on the mental, moral and physical training of boys in camp."—Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.

"Not only a book to delight boys themselves, but it should be read by their fathers."—Boston Transcript.

Around-the-Fire

H. M. BURR

Illustrated. Library buckram, 75 cents

These are stories of beginnings, told in a way a leader or a father would like to tell them to his boys. They are specially good for reading aloud to a circle of young listeners. The big universal facts of life are put in the form of simple narrative with the touch of mystery and strange delight that particularly appeals to younger readers. Mr. Burr treats, in prose, material somewhat like that used in Longfellow's Hiawatha. The style is simple but never bald.

Poems of Action

DAVID R. PORTER, A.M. (Oxon.), Editor

Cloth, 75 cents

Bliss Carman, one of the most distinguished of living American poets writes: "I cannot be too emphatic in praise of your anthology. You have made your selection with rare good judgment. It is in my heart to wish that Poems of Action could find their way into the side pockets of a hundred thousand jackets in the near future. How that would help us all to finer manliness and courage!"

The Wage-Earning Boy

C. C. ROBINSON

Boards, 25 cents

A study based on accurate figures but very human in its working out. Everybody interested in boys or in social or industrial questions will find something here. The wide range of the subject is indicated by a sentence from the book: "If every boy under 18 years of age were in a twinkling eliminated from work, practically every important industry would be handicapped and many would be paralyzed."

Boy Training

JOHN L. ALEXANDER, Editor

Introduction by Ernest Thompson Seton. Cloth, 75 cents

An interpretation of the principles that underlie the symmetrical development of boy life. In his introduction, Mr. Seton calls it "The first comprehensive and satisfactory systematic presentation of the Boy Problem Solved."

Indoor Games and Socials for Boys

G. CORNELIUS BAKER

Illustrated. Cloth, 75 cents

This volume will be of especial value to leaders and teachers in planning socials and entertainments for small groups of boys in churches, clubs, etc. Games that are both entertaining and educative have been carefully chosen.

Second Reader for Coming Americans

PETER ROBERTS, Ph.D.

Stiff paper, 50 cents

An advanced course of readings on History, Industries and Civics. The word study of earlier courses is continued. This book takes the pupil out of the detached sentence form. He should be able, on its completion, to read the ordinary book or magazine. The FIRST READER is uniform with this in style and price.

Men Wanted

FRED B. SMITH, Campaign Leader of the Men and Religion Forward Movement

Cloth, 75 cents

"Here are two hundred and twenty-three pages crowded with nuggets of worth. The author is widely known as 'A man's man.' His book is an appeal for men of worth, with a study of the essentials for true manhood. Every young man should read this volume. It will be welcomed by all workers for men."—New York Christian Advocate.

Dr. Pierson and His Message

J. KENNEDY MACLEAN

Cloth, $1.00

A sketch of the life and work of this great preacher with a varied selection from his hitherto unpublished manuscripts.

College Men and the Bible

CLAYTON S. COOPER

Illustrated. Cloth, gilt top, $1.00; boards, 50 cents

The first comprehensive account of the remarkable, world-wide Bible study movement, which, under the author's leadership, has been developed in colleges and universities. The bibliography is the last word on Bible reference literature.

Out of the Fog

C. K. OBER

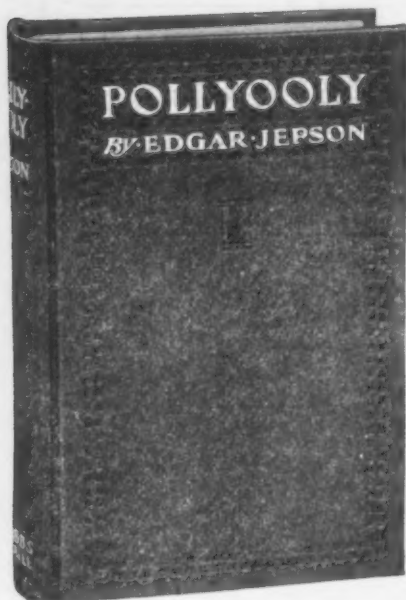

Introduction by Dr. Willfred T. Grenfell. Illustrated. Boards, 50 cts.

"This is a tiny book, but one that the Christian world will not lose or forget. It is brimful of real, red-blooded life. It is a double story of escape from two fogs and, in the way it is told, one-half of the story is not less thrilling than the other. Christian workers should first read it themselves and then buy some more copies to give away. The tale which the author writes is no fiction; he suffered it in his own life."—The Continent.

Published Next Week

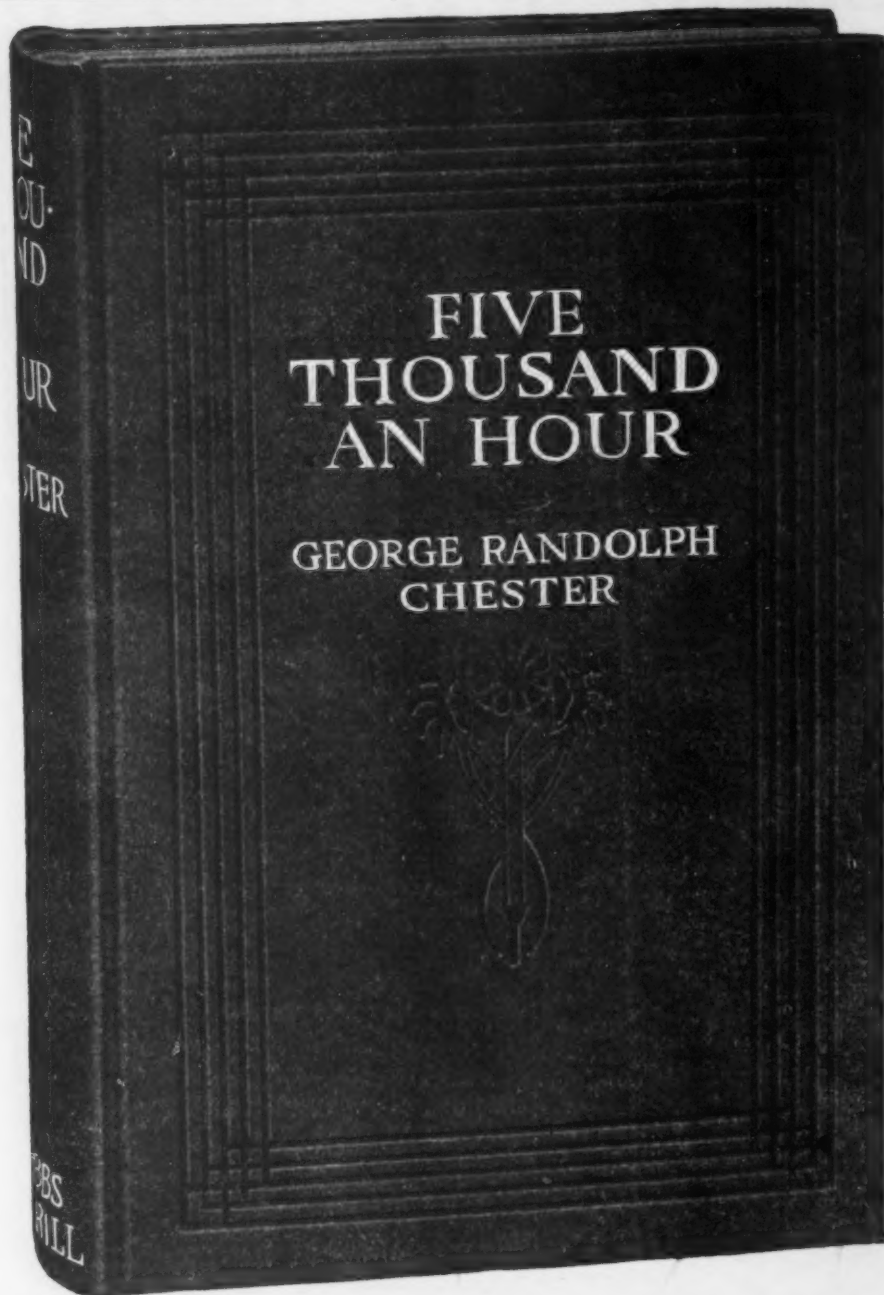

THE modern social game is a theme of unending interest. When the hero is a young man who voluntarily gives up his millions to start again at the bottom, it takes on the attraction of novelty as well. For Horatio Heatherbloom—which, as you may guess, was not really his name—this was the only way. Wealth had formed a handicap, so he put it away—and went to work with his hands and his brain. Mr. Isham's treatment of this unusual theme is whimsical and romantic. The hero shows himself a man, capable of courage in peril and crisis, able to outwit and outmatch a Russian prince. At the end—well, the story ends as all good love stories should, and precisely as you would have it.

GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER'S

New Novel

FIVE THOUSAND AN HOUR

IT sounds impossible—but Johnny Gamble does it. Of course it takes that magician in money-making—George Randolph Chester—to accomplish the feat. Johnny Gamble has one hundred dollars left after being fleeced by his former partner, Collaton. There is a horse at the races named Angora. Johnny bets on the goat and wins his first five thousand. There is, also in the grandstand, a girl, named Constance Joy. Johnny meets her and decides that he must have her. But a million dollars is between them. A whole million dollars—but Johnny Gamble is undaunted. How he earns it and his bride is one of the best and breeziest of the Chester stories.

THE SPRING OUTLOOK.

A YEAR ago the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY was glad to be able to congratulate the trade on having before it a collection of publishers' lists of more than average merit, and particularly on a line of fiction in which it was "hard to pick out a score of titles and say that their publication was a mistake."

This spring, on the contrary, however averse one may be to utter sweeping condemnation, it must be confessed that a large proportion of the publications so far made are, to say the least, singularly lacking in appeal; and that of the 151 novels listed since January 1, it is hard to find a legitimate raison d'être for a dozen.

Nor is it that too few books are being published to maintain the average of merit. The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has listed so far this year approximately 1700 titles, as against 1600 last year on the same date. Even more striking evidence of increase is afforded by the Spring Announcement List itself, which this year runs to 4029 entries, as against 2620 in 1911, and 2110 in 1910. Surely, to justify such an enormously increased production, there should be maintained a reasonable standard of excellence. Or is publishing as a profession to become simply a method of providing our friends, the printers and bookbinders, with work, regardless of possible buyers—or readers of the product?

Of course, it is possible that the books so far issued are not a fair sample—certainly seldom have the publishers seemed more hesitant than they are this season in bringing out their wares—and in the list of books "forthcoming" may be many books, both fiction and non-fiction, which shall prove an agreeable surprise. Or it may be that we have been spoiled for a time by the profusion of good things given us last fall. We cannot expect every season to give us a sextet of "best sellers" to equal those of 1911.

Fortunately, the trade have so far gone right on selling last year's novels, and taken little anxious thought over this year's; and, bearing in mind that the shadow of the "presidential year" boggy is hovering over us, trade conditions are good. Collections are a little better than they were last spring, although buying is somewhat more cautious. Underlying conditions have seldom been sounder. Net prices in fiction are now an established fact; and they are being loyally maintained, too, in a way that some of the wisest men in the trade would five years ago have pronounced an impossibility. The evidence and manifestation of that "get-together" spirit is the strongest hopeful factor present in any forecast of the future.

GREAT as is the importance to the general public of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Sidney vs. Dick, a report of which is given elsewhere in this issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, it is of peculiar interest to the book trade because of its bearing upon the general question of price maintenance upon patented or copyrighted articles. The precise legal point upon which the present case turned was not so much the maintenance of prices as the right to compel the purchaser of a patented article to use "licensed" supplies sold in connection with it. The broader principle laid down in the decision, however, makes the patent law as inclusive of the lesser right as of the greater.

In fact, perhaps the most significant point about the decision is its sweeping character.

"The ruling now made in effect," said Chief Justice White in his dissenting opinion, "is that the patentee has the power by contract to extend his patent rights so as to bring within the claims of his patent things which are not embraced therein, thus virtually legislating by causing the patent laws to cover subjects to which, without the exercise of the right of contract, they could not reach."

As Justice Lurton carefully points out, the conclusion reached by the court proceeded directly from the construction of the patent statutes. The very object of this statute, he says, was to give a monopoly to the inventor, and the fact that he continues that monopoly in his contracts disposing of his articles by charging such price as he pleases, was not illegal. If such conditions interfered with public policy, he adds, Congress alone must change the patent law.

To give the inventor (or the author) incentive for labor by granting him monopoly of his invention, and then to deny him the right to exercise that monopoly in possibly the only way which shall afford him opportunity to profit financially from it, is obviously to grant him no desirable monopoly, and to offer him practically no incentive. The mere issuance of a patent gives the inventor no pecuniary return. His invention must be marketed; and to be marketed, the manufacturer must be reasonably assured of his selling control of the patented article. Otherwise, abundant and repeated experience have shown that there is small probability of adequate return to either manufacturer or patentee.

As a matter of fact, the present decision so strongly affirms the purpose of patent law to protect the legitimate return of the inventor that it goes beyond even the question of the conditions of sale of the patented article itself, and allows the patentee to prescribe the conditions of sale of articles only indirectly related to the patented article. It is not unlikely that such a significant statement of the scope of patent protection will not stand for long without some modification, or at least definite delimitation; but it would seem equally unlikely that the general principle of patent protection, as laid down in the present and preceding decisions of the federal courts will be overturned.

Life deserves the thanks of the publishing fraternity generally for the trouble and energy it has taken to push to a successful conclusion its suit with the Mail for damages for a particularly annoying kind of piracy, that of small bits of matter or illustrations taken by one periodical from another without credit.

It is true that the Mail, in the case in question, an account of which is given elsewhere in this issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, claimed ignorance of the fact that the infringing material was copyrighted, and although the evidence would seem to suggest that it had, or should have had some inkling of the real source of the material it was using, the court clearly points out that, under the law, so far as infringement is concerned, the point was immaterial. "It is not a valid defense," says Bowker on Copyright, "that the infringer is ignorant; nor, on the other hand, can anyone be held for intention to infringe, where the act of infringement has not been accomplished. The new American code, nevertheless, recognizes knowledge and intent in certain cases of punishment or damages by the use of the words 'wilfully' and 'knowingly.' The letter of the law is in general that the infringer must be held responsible and must make good any damages suffered by the copyright proprietor, but proof that he had no guilty knowledge or intent may effect mitigation of punitive damages."

Life, however, was not seeking punitive damages; it desired simply to uphold its own copyrights and deter other would-be pirates, and it was apparently satisfied with the minimum damages imposed.

There have been few more clear-cut cases of copyright infringement; and just what the Mail hoped to gain from its appeal, or, indeed, from a trial of the matter in the first place, it is difficult to see.

SUPREME COURT AFFIRMS PATENT RIGHTS.

RIGHT TO RESTRICT SALES OR MAINTAIN PRICES ON PATENTED ARTICLES UPHeld BY A DIVIDED DECISION.

As has been anticipated by the long line of decisions in the lower federal courts, the right of the proprietor of a patented article to fix the terms of sale of the article has now been affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States.

COURT DIVIDED—4-3.

The point involved is one of unusual importance. The decision of the court was handed down by a minority of the full court—only four members—while Chief Justice White, Associate Justice Hughes, and Associate Justice Lamar dissented. Justice Day, owing to the death of his wife, did not participate, while the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Harlan was still unfilled.

The dissenting opinion which was handed down by the Chief Justice, assails the opinion of the court as a blow directed at every essential power of the State tribunals, in that it brings under the application of the patent laws, which are exclusively within the jurisdiction of the federal courts, questions apparently slightly related to patent rights.

CASE OF SIDNEY VS. DICK.

The case decided is that of Henry Sidney et al. against the A. B. Dick Company. It came to the Supreme Court from the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Henry Sidney et al. are a co-partnership of New York, and the A. B. Dick Company is a Chicago corporation, holding patents for the "Rotary Mimeograph," a form of stencil-duplicating machine. A machine of the form described was sold outright by the Dick Company to Miss Christina B. Skou, of New York, with the "license restriction" that she should use with the machine only the stencil paper, ink, and other supplies manufactured by the patenting corporation. The bill as drawn against Sidney et al. was to restrain them from aiding and abetting Miss Skou in violating the restriction by using ink not bought of the Dick Company. The ink in question is unpatented.

The court, which, in the prevailing opinion of this case consisted of Associate Justices Lurton, who handed down the decision, McKenna, Holmes, and Vandevanter, takes strong ground in sustaining the validity of the Dick contracts. It is within the right of the patentee, says the court, to suppress articles protected by patent or to sell them under restrictive conditions. This right to sell under restrictions is a part of the monopoly sought to be established by the patent laws under the authority of the Constitution, says the court, and an infringement of the conditions is essentially an infringement of the patent right, and redress may therefore be sought under the patent laws, the general law to the contrary, notwithstanding, and the public policy of the State being what it may be.

THE DISSENTING OPINION.

It is in declaring the case within the scope of the patent laws, when the effect goes so far beyond the rights conveyed by patents, that the majority side of the court drew down the sharpest criticism from the dissenting justices.

"My reluctance to dissent," began the Chief Justice, "is overcome in this case: First, because the ruling now made has a much wider scope than the mere parties to this record, since, in my opinion, the effect of the ruling is to destroy in a very large measure the judicial authority of the States by unwarrantedly extending the federal judicial power. Second, because the result just stated, by the inevitable development of the principle announced, may not be confined to sporadic or isolated cases, but will be as broad as society itself, affecting a multitude of people and capable of operation upon every conceivable subject of human contract, interest, or activity, however intensely local or exclusively within State authority they otherwise might be"

THE QUESTION AT ISSUE.

The question certified from the lower court in the case at issue was: "Did the action of the defendants constitute contributory infringement of the complainants' patents?"

There could have been no contributory infringement, by the defendant, says the court's decision, unless the use of Miss Skou's machine by herself with ink not bought from the Dick Company would have constituted direct infringement. The defendants asserted that the agreement to use the Dick Company's ink was collateral and depended on the general law against restraint of trade and not on the patent law. They suggest that if a breach of the restriction be held to support a suit for infringement of patent rights, parties will be deprived of the right to have the validity and general import of the restriction determined by the general law.

"We are unable to assent to these suggestions," says the majority opinion.

"That a patentee may effectively restrict the time, place or manner of using a patented machine, so that a prohibited use will constitute an infringement of the patent, is fully conceded.

"The conclusion we reach is that there is no difference in principle between a sale subject to specific restrictions of the time, place, or purpose of use, and restrictions requiring a use only with other things necessary to the use of the patented article, purchased from the patentee."

REHEARING PROBABLE.

Because of the far-reaching effect this decision may have on pending anti-trust cases, the government, although not a party to the suit, will take steps to bring about a rehearing of the case before a full bench.

Foremost among the pending anti-trust suits which may now be affected are those against the United Shoe Machinery Company, the Keystone Watch Company and the so-called Coaster Brake Trust. A score or more of investigations now under way by the Department of Justice, in which corporations are claiming the rights of patentees to certain monopolies and restrictions, are vitally affected.

Department of Justice officials believe the decision may throw out one feature of the case against the Keystone Watch Company, relating to price maintenance. In the Shoe Machinery Company case, in which questions of patent rights are involved, although it is admitted the company may strengthen some portions of its defense by the decision, the Department of Justice regards those suits as considerably broader than the usual anti-trust suits, involving patents, because of the government's allegations of combination.

BILL TO ABOLISH ALL COPYRIGHT IN MOVING PICTURES AND MECHANICAL MUSIC.

As the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY goes to press we are in receipt of a bill introduced March 12 by Representative Barchfeld, providing for the addition of this clause to the end of Section 5 of the present copyright law:

"And provided, further, that nothing in this act shall be construed to give, directly or indirectly, copyright to any work created or designed for production, reproduction, exhibition, or use in, upon, or through the medium of any patented machine, device or apparatus."

The intent and practical result of this clause would be to abolish copyright in moving pictures and mechanical music.

"LIFE" vs. "MAIL AND EXPRESS."

"LIFE" GETS JUDGMENT FOR $1043.14 FOR THE "MAIL'S" PIRACY OF TWO "LIFE" DRAWINGS—"MAIL'S" DEFENSE WAS IGNORANCE OF THEIR COPYRIGHT.

Life has just won a suit for copyright infringement against the New York Mail and Express.

The Mail issues an illustrated Saturday supplement, a proportion of the matter of which is, it seems, pirated—or, in the language of the Mail, "got from"—certain foreign papers not copyrighted in this country.

It seems that in turn some of these papers had pirated certain illustrations from Life, so that the Mail, in reprinting the pictures again on this side were plainly infringing Life's copyright.

The Mail's case was aggravated by the fact that it had infringed a third time after a warning from two previous infringements, and while reparation for the first infringement was in settlement.

Suit for damages was brought by Life in the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, and, on losing there, the Mail carried the case to the Circuit Court of Appeals. The defenses of the Mail were involved and various. The only one of moment, however, was that of ignorance of the existence of American copyright in the illustrations complained of.

Of this point Judge Holt, in his charge to the jury said:

If the defendant had knowledge that these pictures were copyrighted, the fact that they were published over there without any notice of copyright or any other paper would be entirely immaterial, and the fact that they did not have knowledge that they had been copyrighted is immaterial unless those English copies had been published with the consent of the Life Publishing Company and without any notice of copyright upon them. In order to enable a person to set up a defense in such a case that he copied a copyrighted article in good faith when it had no notice of copyright upon it, he must show that the publication which he copies from and which had no copyright notice upon it was permitted or was authorized by the owner of the copyright.

But, because the question of intent to infringe bears directly upon the amount of damages recoverable, Judge Holt added:

Upon that question about the knowledge of defendant whether these pictures were copyrighted you have the evidence, on one hand, of the gentleman who testified here that he did not know that they were copyrighted, and he did not know that they were published in Life, as I recall his evidence. On the other hand, you have the fact that they were published in Life, that the Mail and Express was on the exchange list of Life, so that a copy of Life was sent to them every week, and that there was put in each of these numbers sent to them this blue slip, which contained a specific notice in addition to the copyrighted notice at the head of the paper, that all the pictures in Life were covered by the copyright and must not be used without special permission. In addition to that there is the evidence in this case in respect to this change in the edition containing the last picture which was issued.

The jury found for the plaintiff and the judgment was confirmed by the Court of Appeals. Spencer, Ordway & Wierum were attorneys for the plaintiff, and Charles S. Mackenzie attorney for the defendant.

HEARINGS ON THE TOWNSEND BILL.

THE bill of Representative Townsend, of New Jersey, providing for a practical annulment of the Copyright Code, so far as it applies to moving pictures, came up for hearing before the House Committee on Patents, March 13.

The bill was originally introduced in January. The modified draft of it, introduced February 21, 1912 (H. R. 20596), adds to Section 25 (b), fourth, of the copyright act of 1909, the following proviso:

"Provided, That in the case of infringement of a dramatic or dramatico-musical composition, or of a work adaptable for dramatization or portrayal or exhibition through or by means of motion pictures, talking machines, phonographs, or other mechanical devices or combinations thereof. Where the defendant proves that he was not aware that he was infringing a copyright work and could not reasonably have foreseen that he was so infringing, the entire recovery by the copyright proprietor shall not exceed the sum of one hundred dollars; but this shall not deprive the copyright proprietor of any other remedy given him under this law, nor shall it apply to infringements occurring after actual notice to a defendant, either by service of process in a suit or other written notice served upon him.

"Nor shall it apply to infringements of dramatic or dramatico-musical compositions actually and for profit being produced upon the stage in the United States at the time of such infringement."

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE.

At a former hearing before the House Committee on Patents, George Haven Putnam, on behalf of the American Publishers' Copyright League, gave a strong defense of the existing law. At the hearing this week, representatives of the Society of American Dramatists and Composers, and other theatrical organizations, were heard. They are bitterly opposed to the proposed measure, declaring that it opens the way to wholesale piracy of books and plays by the moving-picture interests.

MR. TOWNSEND'S DEFENSE.

In a newspaper interview, Mr. Townsend thus defends his bill: "As the law stands, if the proprietor of a moving-picture theatre exhibits a film made from a copyright story he is liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for the first performance and fifty dollars for each subsequent performance. As there are usually at least six performances daily at which the same film is thrown on the screen, the proprietor of a moving-picture theatre is liable to a penalty of $350 if he used a scenario from a copyright story. As there are produced from forty to fifty reels for each film made, it can be readily understood that strike suits may bring ruin to the moving-picture business.

"My bill provides that if suit is brought for the violation of a copyright, the proprietor of a moving-picture theatre must prove that he had no knowledge of the existence of copyright in the story upon which it is based, and had no reasonable means of ascertaining that copyright existed. The burden of proof is upon the violator of the copyright. If he can prove innocence he must pay one penalty only—provided he ceases, upon notification, to continue the performance. Should he fail to heed the notice he is still subject to the penalties provided in the present. At the same time, it is specifically stipulated that a plea of innocence shall not be considered in any case where a drama or play which has been produced is concerned.

"The enactment of the proposed law certainly cannot prove unjust to any playwright. Nor is there any reason why the owner of a copyright in a book or a story will be injured, for he can collect from every theatre using the film made from such book or story, and can protect himself against further reproduction by the simple means of notifying the owner of the theatre.

"Inasmuch as nearly every newspaper publishing original matter to-day is copyrighted, it is apparent that the manufacturers of films for moving pictures and the proprietors of theatres in which those films are used cannot possibly know whether each and every scenario offered to them is protected by copyright. A conspiracy is easily possible whereby a playlet may be made from a story published in a copyrighted newspaper of Seattle, for instance. The film maker is an innocent purchaser. Then a suit is instituted, and hundreds of thousands of dollars demanded for reproduction in moving-picture form of a scene which the author would be only too glad to sell outright for fifty dollars. It is to protect such possibilities that the amendment is proposed in my bill."

OBJECTIONS TO THE BILL.

All interested in the protection of copyright feel, however, that the effect of Mr. Townsend's bill would be to so emasculate that portion of the copyright law covering moving pictures as to render it practically valueless.

In his letter to the Committee on Patents, Mr. Putnam said:

FEBRUARY 3, 1912.

MY DEAR SIR: Senate Bill 4233, bearing the name of Senator Briggs, was introduced on the 8th of January and was referred to the Committee on Patents. This bill is identical in purpose and in phraseology with House Bill No. 15,263, which bears the name of Representative Townsend, and which was introduced on the 9th of December, and, in like manner, referred to the House Committee on Patents.

I am writing on behalf of the publishers of the country who are associated together in The American Publishers' Copyright League, and on behalf also of the authors whose business interests are in the hands of these publishers and who depend upon the publishers to do what is necessary to protect their copyrights, to express the hope that your committee will not give its approval to this measure and that it may fail to secure enactment. The purpose of the two bills is to remove, or materially to lessen, the obstacles that under the present statute stand in the way of the "appropriation" for dramatic or dramatical musical purposes of the ideas, themes, and characters that have been created by the producers—authors, composers, or artists.

The protection given by the statute of 1909 is in line with (although as a matter of fact is not quite so comprehensive as) the protection accorded in the similar provisions of the copyright statutes of other civilized states.

These provisions have for their purpose the carrying out under statute of the interpretation of property rights which have for centuries been accepted, and as far as practicable enforced by the courts, on both sides of the Atlantic, under the principles of the common law.

A performer having occasion to utilize the plot, theme, characters, or arrangements of scenes which have come into existence in a story need have no difficulty in securing, under an equitable business arrangement with the producer or the copyright owner, the right to make such use. He is in a position similar to that of the newspaper publisher who desires to bring into print in a periodical the text, or some portion of the text, or some rearrangement of the text, of books that have been duly entered for copyright. Authorization for such special use of the entire material, or of portions selected from such material, are given in the ordinary course of business in consideration of such payment as is warranted by the market value of the material, that is to say, by its probable earning power, first, for the original owner, and second, for the person desiring to make a special use of the same.

There is no reason why such property should be utilized without due compensation. The fact that a producer or owner may occasionally be unreasonable in his estimate of the value of his property is as true for all other classes of property, but at best or at worst affects but a few individual cases. An equitable compensation is arrived at safely under business competition and with the usual opportunity for bargaining.

The Briggs-Townsend Bills give opportunity for the collection, in case of an appropriation such as that above referred to, of a penalty "not exceeding the sum of one hundred dollars." Such a provision would mean simply that the protection proposed under the law had been practically cancelled.

With the one hand our government gives to the producer of copyrighted property a monopoly, that is to say, an absolute control over the thing produced, while with the other, if a measure like this should become law, this monopoly or property control is practically taken away. The suggestion that such nominal penalty might meet the requirements is connected with the condition that such "infringement could not reasonably have been foreseen."

We point out that this is a contingency that cannot properly be considered by a court. The motives by which a business man is influenced in the attempt to utilize property created by somebody else, or the actual status of his knowledge of the history of such property right, is something that is not open to evidence. It is concealed within the consciousness of the individual in question. If a person is willing to appropriate without compensation property that has been created by somebody else, he is equally willing to certify that he did not have knowledge as to the exact ownership, or as to the fact that there was any question. A plea of this kind is too trivial to be permitted to find place in a provision of a United States statute. It may in fact fairly be assumed that any book or work of art which bears the record of copyright is the property of somebody. It may also fairly be assumed that any person having sufficient intelligence to shape a reproduction of such material in one form or another has sufficient intelligence to verify, if necessary, by application to the Bureau of Copyrights, the record of the term for which the material is protected.

It may be answered that an intelligent and trustworthy court could be depended upon to protect the interests of the producers against a wrongful application of this provision. If this be true, however, for copyright property, it should be equally true for all classes of property.

The first thing is that the law itself shall be so worded as to concede adequate protection which in other divisions of the law it is proposed to concede. The courts should not have placed upon them any further responsibility than that of enforcing the interpretation of a law which is in itself not only equitable in purpose, but effective in its phraseology.

This objection is respectfully submitted for the consideration of your committee. I am,

Yours respectfully,

GEO. HAVEN PUTNAM.

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.

At the eleventh annual meeting of the American Publishers' Association, held February 28, the following officers were elected for the new year: Frederick A. Stokes, president; Frank H. Dodd, vice-president; Frank N. Doubleday, secretary; and Nelson Taylor, treasurer. Since its organization, Charles Scribner has served as president three years, Frank H. Scott three years, and Frank H. Dodd five years. No other business was transacted.

THE BASIS OF QUALITY IN PAPER.*

WHEREAS a few not greatly varying sorts of paper were enough to satisfy the very moderate requirements of our grandfathers, the development of modern conditions has brought such complexity into social and commercial life, and extended so enormously the range of industry as to increase by many thousandfold the demands of the community upon the paper maker. In his efforts to meet these demands, the paper maker has been greatly aided by countless discoveries and inventions, without which, indeed, the demands could not have been met at all. New sources of raw material, new methods of treatment, new machines, and altogether new agencies of many kinds have been added to the resources of the art. As a result, the consumer now finds available for his widely diverse purposes thousands of kinds of paper which exhibit in their composition and properties the extremes of possible variation in a multitude of factors.

Amid such bewildering variety, how is quality to be determined? What constitutes the basis of quality in paper?

The Germans long ago, after extended investigation, established and have since developed and maintained under government regulations, a system of classification of papers based on their composition and physical properties. This classification or definition of so-called "Normal Papers" has since attained a considerable acceptance in countries other than Germany, and has come to be regarded as constituting a series of standards of quality in paper. Valuable as this system of classification has proved itself to be to both users and makers of paper, and indispensable as the refined and accurate testing methods which it involves have become for the intelligent selection of papers, it remains true, nevertheless, that, taken by itself, or as applied to any particular papers without reference to their intended use, it is without significance as to quality. There is, in a word, no such thing as a general basis for quality in paper, and no other possible basis for quality in case of any particular paper than its suitability for its intended use. Good writing paper is bad blotting; good news print is poor wrapping; good book paper is an impossible cigarette paper; and so on. In no case can the properties of good paper be defined until the specific use for which the paper is intended has been stated or assumed. The properties which confer a high quality upon a paper intended for one purpose are precisely those which condemn it for another. Stretch is a desirable property for a bag paper, it may be fatally objectionable in paper for lithography; opacity is a principal element in determining the quality of Bible paper, transparency is equally important in pergamin and glassine papers. Certain grades of book papers base their claims to quality mainly upon the extent to which they bulk for weight; the buyer of wrapping paper should consider, on the other hand, area for weight in determining quality.

Keeping clearly in mind, then, the conclusion that the basis of quality in paper must always be found in the relation of the properties of particular papers to the intended purpose of these papers, let us consider the more important properties of the material and their relation to particular uses.

In case of a thing so apparently simple in its make-up as a sheet of paper, an extraordinary number of factors are involved in any consideration of its quality. Many of these factors are elusive, in the sense of evading exact definition or determination, but they are none the less important, or even at times decisive, on that account. Such, for example, are permanency, feel, texture, finish, rattle, tear, formation, fastness of color, distinctness and artistic quality of water-marking, dirt, softness, hardness, hairiness, or "whiskers," distinctive appearance, "color" of white papers, printing quality and ability to withstand erasure. As to most of these properties, reliance must be placed upon expert judgment and comparison with standard or accepted samples of generally similar papers. Permanency, however, is largely a function of composition, and the composition of a paper can be determined with a considerable degree of accuracy. No paper, therefore which is intended for permanent records should contain ground wood, unbleached fiber of any kind, acid, sulphur, soluble chlorides, or more than a moderate amount of ash. Preferably, it should be free from resin, and in the absence of conclusive proof of the permanent character of papers made from well prepared chemical wood fibers, preference should be given to all rag papers. Since overbleaching hastens the deterioration of fibers, extreme whiteness is undesirable in the sheet.

In case of papers for ephemeral uses, permanency has, of course, little bearing upon quality. For printing upon fast perfecting presses, newspaper is better paper because of the large proportion of ground wood it contains, and to which it owes in great measure its special printing quality.

Fastness of color, while not permitting of exact quantitative determination, can, nevertheless, be tested experimentally with sufficient accuracy for most purposes, while very definite conclusions may often be drawn from the known degree of fastness of the dyes or pigments from which the paper derives its color. Fastness of color is of comparatively little importance as affecting the quality of papers intended to serve a temporary purpose. It becomes of prime importance in wall papers, etching, photograph mounts, plate papers, map and fine book paper. Similarly, uniformity of color has slight influence on the quality of small lots of paper, especially if these are to be used as single sheets. It does bear directly upon the quality of paper for serial publications which are to be bound together. With the invention of the Ives Colorimeter, the color of paper has fortunately become a property permitting of exact measurement and definition.

For almost all purposes, the presence of a noticeable amount of dirt is regarded as detrimental to the quality of paper. It not only detracts from the appearance of the paper, but its presence may be indicative of the use of inferior or carelessly prepared material. In some few cases, as with wrappers made from screenings, the dirt may be so considerable in amount, and so uniformly distributed as to become an integral and characteristic part of the paper, while as with certain Japanese papers dirt in the form of unreduced bark or vegetable tissue may be so disposed within the sheet as to actually enhance its quality from the artistic standpoint. While it is not easy to give numerical expression to the amount of dirt present in a sheet, the experienced paper maker or paper buyer has no difficulty in making close comparisons in this regard. It is by no means so easy to estimate exactly the bearing of relative amounts of dirt upon quality.

Fortunately, what may be called the fundamental properties of paper permit in nearly every case of exact measurement and numerical statement. These fundamental properties are thickness, weight per unit area, resistance to bursting strain, tensile strength in different directions, stretch, ability to resist wear, tendency to absorb ink or water, opacity. Furthermore, these properties are largely determined by the composition of the paper, and the care and skill with which its material has been prepared and manipulated during manufacture. Fortunately, again, the composition can be accurately determined by chemical and microscopical examination, while at the same time many direct and important inferences may be drawn from these examinations as to the course and nature of the processes of manufacture.

Of all the fundamental properties, thickness is perhaps most easily determined. Differences of a few ten-thousandths of an inch are instantly detected by trained fingers, and the exact measurement of thickness to ten-thousandths of an inch is easily made by means of several forms of micrometer employed in paper testing. Thickness bears directly upon quality in case of most papers, but the way in which it bears is determined always by the purpose for which the paper is intended. Bible papers, onion skin, kraft, pergamyn, condenser paper, tissues generally, and many other special sorts gain in quality, as represented by money value, with decrease of thickness, partly because of increased difficulty and cost of manufacture, but principally because they better meet the necessities of the consumer. Other things being equal, a manifold paper which permits the making of ten copies is obviously a better paper for its purpose than one which cannot be used for more than five. The quality and value of the paper used for building up electrical condensers is enormously influenced by the relative thinness of the paper, since the efficiency of the condenser depends largely upon the closeness with which the tinfoil plates are brought together; but while thinness is thus important, quality in this case is finally determined by absence of pinholes, the presence of which entirely destroys the value of the paper for its purpose.

Weight per unit area is a quality factor of varying importance, although since paper is sold by the pound the lighter of two otherwise equally satisfactory papers is commonly to be preferred. This does not always hold, however, as in case of paper for conversion into celluloid. With wrapping papers, weight per unit area becomes of the first importance, and when low and combined with strength commands the market, as evidenced by the rapidly extending popularity of kraft paper. With cover papers a small increase in weight may double the cost of mailing pamphlets, while obviously at equal prices per pound the cost of paper for printing a given number of pages is proportional to the weight per unit area.

Weight for bulk influences quality for most purposes, and is especially important in connection with book papers, blottings, matrix papers and box boards. With book papers, indeed, this factor is often a good exponent of general quality, since low weight for bulk implies a minimum of filler, the use of high-grade stock and skilful treatment in the beater. English book papers are notable for their bulking property and moderate weight. Where an edition involving a number of volumes of varying amount of text is to be made, the bulking property of the paper for the different volumes should be in inverse proportion to the number of pages in the volumes in order that the volumes themselves shall run uniform in size. Laid papers bulk more than wove papers of the same composition, and the bulking quality of different fibers varies over a wide range, esparto making an especially bulky paper. The use of mineral fillers, prolonged beating, hard calendering, coating and especially the addition of barytes to the coating mixture, all tend to make the paper thin for weight. They are justified only to the extent to which they may compensate by affecting other quality factors favorably.

Strength, whether measured as resistance to bursting strain, resistance to direct pull, or determined roughly by mere tearing, is commonly regarded as one of the most direct evidences of quality. There is a large measure of justification for this conclusion, since high strength generally implies good stock, carefully prepared and skilfully manipulated. A certain minimum of strength, which, however, varies greatly with the class of paper, is an essential prerequisite of quality; while with special sorts of paper, as bag paper, kraft, paper for tags, twine, cartridge cases, etc., strength almost determines quality provided it is not associated with brittleness, which makes the paper weak to sudden strain. With envelope papers, strength after folding is far more important than the strength of the flat paper. Curiously, rosin sizing reduces strength, and "wild" papers are commonly stronger than similar papers showing good formation. The "strength ratio" affords the most convenient way of reporting strength of papers. It is the quotient obtained by dividing the strength in pounds as determined by the Mullen tester, by the thickness in ten-thousandths of an inch. A paper 35-10,000 thick, which tested thirty-five pounds, would, therefore, have a strength ratio of 1.0. The strongest commercial papers seldom or never show a strength ratio higher than 2.0, although we have recently prepared samples by special methods with the extraordinarily high ratio of 3.8.

The stretch of paper commonly ranges from 1 to 4 per cent. The amount of stretch shown by the paper affects quality favorably or otherwise, according to the requirements of use. A large proportionate stretch improves the quality of bag papers, cartridge paper, drawing, matrix and paper for twine, artificial leather and embossing. It is very objectionable in lithograph, coated and many printing papers requiring close register, as also in paper for music rolls for mechanical organ and piano players.

In this country, up to the present time, little or no attention has been paid to what, in case of most papers, is one of the most reliable and significant indications of general quality, namely, the ability of the paper to withstand wear. Paper for money or for permanent records, loose-leaf books, maps, school books, wrapping, card stock for catalogue files, folders, and many other uses, should exhibit this property in the highest degree consistent with other requirements of the specification. Although in the past reliable methods and apparatus have not been available, in the United States at least, for determining wearing power, there is no longer any excuse for ignoring this essential element of quality, the numerical value of which may now be determined with the utmost accuracy with standard apparatus.

The capillary power of a paper, or its tendency to absorb ink or water, may be given sufficiently accurate expression by simple methods of testing. The bearing of the results upon quality depends entirely upon the class of paper tested. With due regard to other factors, the quality of writing papers rises as the capillary power falls, the quality of blotting paper is almost wholly determined by its capillary power; matrix papers and papers for celluloid manufacture or for conversion into parchment paper, vulcanized fiber or roofing must have high capillary power, that of printing papers should generally be only moderate if the best results in rapid printing are to be secured.

The determination of opacity is more difficult, although this property is often one upon which the quality of paper in large part depends, as in case of Bible paper, envelope paper, and book papers generally. A considerable degree of translucency, upon the other hand, is a mark of quality in bond papers, while for other writings opacity commonly suggests quality. In parchment paper, again, quality presupposes translucency, while pergamin papers of good quality must be almost transparent.

These physical properties of paper, which, taken together, and interpreted with reference to the use for which the paper is intended, are almost conclusive as defining quality, are nevertheless themselves largely functions of the composition of the sheet. For this reason any final estimate of quality must include consideration of the sorts of fiber present, their condition and proportion, the kind and amount of filler, the proportion and sorts of size, and the presence or absence of acid, bleach residues, and other chemicals likely to cause deterioration or otherwise impair quality.

Although paper of some sort may be made of almost any vegetable fiber, the number of fibrous raw materials economically available for paper making is, in view of the almost infinite variety of vegetation, surprisingly limited. Cotton, flax, jute, straw, esparto, hemp and a few woods almost exhaust the list. Nevertheless, not only does each of these fibers impart definite and often distinctive characteristics to the sheet into the composition of which it enters, but the range of variation is further enormously increased by admixture of several fibers, and the chemical and mechanical treatment which they have received by way of preparation. The best stock for any paper is easily spoiled by careless or improper methods. The stock that under skilful treatment normally yields a strong, tough, permanent sheet, may by improper beating or careless bleaching give only a weak, brittle and short-lived paper. The degree to which the fiber substance is hydrated during beating has a profound effect upon the properties of the paper, as also the manner in which the fibers themselves have been subdivided. All this, of course, to the papermaker himself, is the mere A B C of his art, but it is commonly unknown to the paper consumer or ignored by him in his estimates of quality. Quality cannot be predicated upon stock alone. It is, nevertheless, true that for many papers, especially those intended for writing and the higher grades of printing, the properties representative of the highest quality are not obtainable except through the use of a large proportion of rag stock. For insulating papers, such as cable paper, however, manila stock is distinctly better than rag, and, curiously enough, so is even a lime-cooked straw pulp. Where great toughness is desirable, as in tag and certain wrapping papers, the highest quality is obtainable only through use of manila and similar bast fibers.

The relation of the wood fibers to quality has been a matter of controversy since the time of their introduction. As to ground wood, there is probably now no question of its unsuitability for practically every use involving permanency, since exposure for even a few hours to direct sunlight renders ground-wood papers weak and brittle. It is particularly undesirable in so-called manila papers intended for making envelopes, which, if containing much ground wood quickly lose all strength on the fold under the influence of sunlight. For wall papers, rather strangely, ground wood does not seem open to much objection, partly because no great strength is required of such papers, but principally because the surface coating with size and color protects the paper beneath. For newsprint paper, ground wood remains the only possible material, in spite of some minor disadvantages for such use.

Sulphite and soda fiber, if thoroughly well cooked and carefully bleached, are probably nearly and perhaps quite as permanent as rag stock. In fact, the examination of over 400 samples of paper from the library of the University of Berlin showed that papers composed wholly or in large part of chemical wood fiber gave slightly less evidence of deterioration than all rag papers. Since the better grades of rag stock are considerably more expensive than chemical wood fiber, endow the paper with more wearing power and better feel and texture, the presence of wood fibers is, in most cases, properly regarded as tending to lower quality. They were highly objectionable in papers for making parchment and vulcanized fiber, which should consist wholly of cotton rag stock.

The number of cases in which mineral filler improves the quality of paper is comparatively limited, although it is well recognized that for certain uses a moderate amount of filler reacts favorably upon quality, by increasing opacity and improving feel and finish. Filler invariably, however, lowers strength and resistance to wear, diminishes bulk for weight and tends toward brittleness. In many special papers it is wholly inadmissible.

The number of factors which are concerned with the quality of paper in its multitudinous applications to special uses is so great as to prevent consideration or even enumeration of them all. A paper for wrapping hardware or a card for mounting silver jewelry may seem to possess every desirable property, and yet be worse than useless because of a trace of sulphur. A printing paper may develop "whiskers" or clog the type by mineral filler, a coated paper may pick or develop odor, a cigarette paper may burn badly, a writing paper may allow the ink to spread because the size has been converted into peptones by overheating, a filter paper may fail to hold a fine precipitate or unduly retard the passage of liquid, and so on. Enough has been said to suggest to consumers of paper the complexity of the problems involved in the determination of quality, the importance of paper testing, and the advantages to both maker and consumer of carefully considered and intelligently drawn specifications defining quality as a function of intended use.

AMERICAN BOOK AUCTION SALES, 1911.

From the Preface of "American Book Prices Current" for 1911, published by Dodd, Mead & Co.

THE sale of the first portion of the library of the late Robert Hoe by the Anderson Auction Company in nineteen sessions, afternoons and evenings, April 24 to May 5, 1911, was the most notable event in the entire history of book-auctions. The catalogue, in two volumes, described 3538 lots, and the total sum realized was $997,363.50. Had it not been for the fact that one book, imperfectly described, was withdrawn from the sale, the total would have reached a million dollars.

The portion sold comprised only about one-fourth of Mr. Hoe's magnificent library, although this first portion included a larger selection of the most valuable books. No other library ever dispersed at auction has achieved a sum approaching the total paid for the first part alone of the Hoe library. The Sunderland library, removed from Blenheim Palace, sold by Puttick & Simpson from 1881 to 1883, comprised 13,858 lots and brought a total of £65,581 6s. William Beckford's library, sold by Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge in 1882 and 1883, comprised 9837 lots and brought a total of £73,551 18s. More recently, Lord Ashburnham's library, sold in 1897 and 1898 by Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, contained 4075 lots and brought a total of £62,712 7s. 6d. To this sum should be added the Ashburnham manuscripts, sold in 1891, 628 lots bringing £33,217 6s. 1d., making a total for the collection sold at auction of £95,929 14s. This is the highest previous record of any library sold at public sale.

New records of price, if not always of value, were made on hundreds, if not thousands, of books.

There is ample warrant for any wealthy collector paying exceedingly high prices for [some of the books in the Hoe sale.] These books are of such extreme rarity that another opportunity to purchase can hardly be expected to occur again for many years. Many books, however, in the Hoe library, not of great rarity and which frequently come upon the market, brought proportionately high prices. For this reason many of the records in the present volume are misleading, and as a guide to the market value of the books in question are entirely unreliable.

Aside from the Hoe sale, the season was not especially notable, although frequent sales have been held by all of the four auction houses. The season began by the sale, on October 4, 5 and 6, of Part I. of the library of James S. Greene by the Merwin-Clayton Sales Co. Part II. of the library was sold October 18 and 19. Of the numerous collections dispersed by this house, the following are the more notable: the library of John B. Dunbar, sold in three parts, October 25, 26 and 27; November 21 and 22, and December 8; the angling collection of the late James L. High, of Chicago, including many editions, beginning with the first (1653) of the "Compleat Angler," sold February 6, 7 and 8; the library of John La Farge, mainly books on the fine arts, sold February 20, 21 and 22; the library of L. M. Powers, of Haverhill, Massachusetts, including a very long series of first editions, mainly inscribed copies of the books of Samuel L. Clemens, but with first editions of many other modern English and American authors, sold April 4, 5, 6 and 7; the library of Charles A. Greene, of Summit, New Jersey, sold in two parts, June 7 and 8, and 12 and 13; a selection from the library of Edward Everett Hale, sold June 19 and 20; and two selections of duplicates from the New York Public Library, mainly Americana, sold February 3 and February 17.

The Anderson Auction Company began their season with the sale, on October 10, of the library of Charles D. Peters. After the Hoe library, the most important offering of collector's books made during the season was the library of Judge Jacob Klein, of St. Louis, Missouri, Part I., February 9 and 10, and Part II., February 15 and 16. The series of first editions of Swinburne was the most extensive ever offered at auction, either in England or America. It began with the copy of the college magazine, "Undergraduate Papers," to which Swinburne was a contributor. This brought $1650. This copy sold for a few shillings in a bundle at Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge's a few years ago, and after passing through the hands of two or three booksellers it reached Judge Klein, costing him $500. The series of George Meredith, Robert Louis Stevenson and Bret Harte were also especially notable. Included also were several important manuscripts by Bret Harte, William Morris, Swinburne and other writers. A selection from the library of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), including manuscripts of several of his printed books, was sold February 7 and 8. The most important books of his library were given to the Public Library of Redding, Connecticut, or retained by the family, and the books sold were few of them of much interest as books. Each volume contained a certificate of Albert Bigelow Paine (Mr. Clemens's executor), and with a few exceptions they contained autograph signature or manuscript notes by Clemens or had inserted fragments of manuscripts.

Among other sales held by them, the following may be mentioned: The library of Alexander Herzog, sold October 26, 27 and 28; a collection of books relating to the Northwest Territory, brought together by John Waddle, of Chillicothe, Ohio, sold November 1 and 2; the library of Charles W. Carpenter, sold November 3 and 4; books relating to the fine arts from the library of Edwin Babcock Holden, sold November 9; books on natural history, brought together by Mrs. H. A. Hammond-Smith, sold November 10 and 11; the library of George Bentham, notable for its collection by and about James McNeil Whistler, sold November 28 and 29; the library of Alonzo W.

Porter, sold December 1 and 2; and the library of Edmund Clarence Stedman, Part I. sold January 12 and 13, Part. II. January 19 and 20, and Part III. January 24 and 25, notable for the large number of presentation copies of the books of authors contemporary with Stedman, American and English, and for many interesting autograph letters.

In Boston, Messrs. Libbie & Company opened their season, October 19 and 20, by the sale of a portion of the library of the late William Plumer, former Governor of New Hampshire. On November 15, 16 and 17 they dispersed the libraries of the Hon. Edward Everett and his son, Dr. William Everett. Included was William Everett's copy of the first edition (1663-1661) of Eliot's Indian Bible. Early voyages, State histories, books on natural history, various editions of the classics, etc., made up the library. Other libraries sold by them during the season were those of A. E. Chase, of Portland, Maine, sold November 30 and December 1; Frederick P. Richardson, of Salem, Massachusetts, sold January 10; Dr. I. T. Talbot, of Boston, sold February 23 and 24; George A. Clough, of Boston, sold March 22 and 23; Eugene Engley, of Colorado, sold April 11 and 12; Henry A. Stearns, of Pawtucket, Rhode Island, sold May 12; and Julius L. Brown, of Atlanta, Georgia, sold June 7 and 8.

In Philadelphia, Stan. V. Henkels opened his season with a sale of a miscellaneous collection on October 21. This was followed on November 11 and 12 by the sale of the important collection of Americana brought together by William Fisher Lewis, including several Indian treaties printed by Benjamin Franklin, books on the early history of Pennsylvania, rare Bradford imprints, etc. Other notable libraries sold under his auspices were those of Henry T. Coates, sold December 9 and 10; A. S. Whiton, chiefly first editions of nineteenth-century English authors, sold February 17 and 18; Charles Steigerwalt, including a long series of eulogies on Abraham Lincoln, sold March 20 and 21; and Benjamin Franklin Hadduck, mainly first editions of nineteenth-century English and American authors, sold April 18 and 19. On December 20 he sold important historical autographs and manuscripts from the papers of Patrick Henry, and on January 31 a selection of autographs and documents from the collection of Charles Steigerwalt.

METHODIST BOOK CONCERN SELLS CHICAGO BUILDING.

THE Methodist Book Concern has sold its eleven-story building at 14 West Washington Street, Chicago, for $600,000 to the Marshall Field estate.

The Methodist Book Concern property fronts 30 feet, with a depth of 182 feet, and the building, a fireproof structure, is one of the downtown Chicago landmarks.

Edward R. Graham, of Jennings & Graham, publishing agents of the book concern, who represented it in the sale of that property, says:

"We have had the sale of the property under consideration for months, and have had various offers. At the recent meeting in New York of the book committee, which has official charge of all of the publishing interests of the Methodist Episcopal denomination, the publishing agents were authorized to dispose of the property whenever the offer reached $600,000. Mr. Field made the offer of this sum, and we accepted it. We have the privilege of occupying the building until December 31.

"We hope to make an investment that will give more benefit to the superannuated ministers to whom the profits of the publishing business of the church goes."

The first floor of the building is now occupied as a general book store. The basement contains the power-printing presses, and the other ten stories contain, in addition to business offices, the offices of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, the Epworth Herald, the rooms of the board of Sunday schools, the board of conference claimants, the headquarters of the City Missionary Society, and an assembly room.

The original Methodist Book Concern was established in Philadelphia in 1790. The Chicago institution is one of several branches.

BEST SELLING BOOKS.

ACCORDING to the Bookman's lists, the six books (fiction) which have sold best in the order of demand during January are:

	Points
1. The Winning of Barbara. Worth. Wright. (Book Supply.) $1.30....	229
2. The Harvester. Stratton - Porter. (Doubleday, Page.) $1.35.....	219
3. The Iron Woman. Deland. (Harper.) $1.35	147
4. Queed. Harrison. (Houghton Mifflin.) $1.35	103
5. Peter Ruff and the Double Four. Oppenheim. (Little, Brown.) $1.25...	97
6. The Following of the Star. Barclay. (Putnam.) $1.35	90

The best selling non-fiction was:

1. Three Plays. Brieux. (Brentano's.) $1.50.
2. Creative Evolution. Bergson. (Holt.) $2.50.
3. Woman and Labor. Schreiner. (Stokes.) $1.25.
4. The Changing Chinese. Ross. (Century Co.) $2.40.
5. The Human Machine. Bennett. (Doran.) 75 cents.
6. How to Live on Twenty-four Hours a Day. Bennett. (Doran.) 50 cents.

The best selling juveniles were:

1. Patty Series. Wells. (Dodd, Mead.) $1.25.
2. Team Mates. Barbour. (Century Co.) $1.50.
3. Rolf in the Woods. Seton. (Doubleday, Page.) $1.75.
4. Betty Wales Series. Warde. (Penn.) $1.25.

5. Peter and Wendy. Barrie. (Scribner.) $1.50.
6. Peter Rabbit Series. Potter. (Warne.) 50 cents.

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE seventeenth annual meeting of the Booksellers' League will be held at the Hotel Martinique, at Broadway and 33d Street, Wednesday evening, March 20, at 6:30 o'clock. Besides the annual election of officers, there will be short addresses on trade topics of current interest by members of the league. Unless members notify Charles A. Burkhardt, 31 West 23d Street, before March 18, no provision will be made for them at the table.

OBITUARY NOTES.

HARRY E. COE, junior member of the firm of Coe Brothers, booksellers and stationers, Springfield, Ill., died at his home in that city on March 5, after a short illness.

A. M. BECKERS, traveler for the National Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, died suddenly in Portland, Oregon, on February 14. "Colonel" Beckers, as he was popularly known, was a bachelor, his only relatives being two sisters in Germany. He was buried in the picturesque Calvary Cemetery, overlooking Portland. Fortunately, some of his many book friends happened to be in Portland on the day of the funeral, and among those attending the services were Leslie Nourse, of Henry Altemus Co.; P. C. Donaldson, of Frederick J. Drake & Co.; A. D. Pierce, of Little, Brown & Co.; A. G. Saalfeld, Jr.; G. B. Buck, and Mark W. Gill, of the J. K. Gill Co., who acted as pallbearers.

A NOTABLE journalistic figure has passed away in the person of Dr. José Paz, proprietor of the great Buenos Aires daily, La Prensa, who died at his villa at Monte Carlo, March 11. Buenos Aires, where La Prensa is published, has the distinction of having the most polyglot collection of newspapers in the world. There are 472 publications in various languages in the city. Twenty-two of these papers are Italian, eight French, eight English, eight German, and one Arabic. Señor Paz was recognized as the dean of the journalists of South America, and also as a leader of progressive thought and constructive journalism. His family has been identified with the fortunes of the Argentine Republic since the beginning of the last century. La Prensa is one of the most enterprising journals in the world, and its office building is one of the show places of Buenos Aires.

PICK-UPS.

THE DEALERS' DAILY PRAYER.

My little bookshop speaks volumes to me,
From ceiling way down to the ground!
Yet thousands of books I'd give up with glee
If buyers could only be found!

—C. E. W.

PERSONAL NOTES.

AMONG the suffragettes arrested in the recent window-smashing riots in London was Mrs. Eleanor Jacobs, wife of W. W. Jacobs, the novelist.

R. R. REILLY, formerly manager of the manufacturing department of the Reilly & Britton Co., of Chicago, has been appointed manager of the publicity and service department of P. F. Collier & Son, Inc.

THE numerous friends in the trade of Mrs. A. H. Leypoldt, of the office of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, who has been ill for some weeks at the home of her daughter in Scranton, Pa., will be glad to learn that she is slowly improving.

GRAHAM MOFFATT, author of "Buntz Pulls the String," perhaps the most popular play in New York this winter, arrived in this country Saturday last—his first trip. He is here to oversee the American production of another play of his, "The Concealed Bed." One of his brothers is playing in "Buntz," and five other brothers are in the theatrical business.

THE trustees of Yale University have invited A. Maurice Low, author of "The American People" (Houghton Mifflin Co.), to be the Bromley Lecturer this year. Mr. Low, it is believed, is the first Englishman selected to deliver these lectures. A German translation of "The American People" will shortly be issued in Berlin.

PERIODICAL NOTES.

FREDERICK EVANS, JR., formerly managing editor of the Newark (N. J.) Sunday Call, is now one of the editors of Hampton's Magazine.

TALCOTT WILLIAMS, associate editor of the Philadelphia Press, has been appointed director of the new Pulitzer School of Journalism connected with Columbia University. The building for the school is now being erected.

It is rumored that Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, of pure-food law fame, intends to resign shortly from the Bureau of Chemistry, to accept a more remunerative position as editor of Hearst's Good Housekeeping, and opportunity for lecture work.

JOHN ADAMS THAYER, owner of the Smart Set, has bought the Polo Monthly and Clubman. The Polo Monthly issued its first number last November, combining with the Clubman, which had been in existence for some three years. It is Mr. Thayer's intention to change the name of his latest acquisition to Polo and the Country Clubman, and to devote it to all seasonable amateur sports and pastimes. Francis D. Hunter, the founder, continues as editor.

THE value of William R. Hearst's New York Evening Journal as a newspaper property is estimated at $8,000,000. This interesting fact was brought to light, Thursday, by the filing of papers in connection with the appraisal of the estate of the late Thomas T. Williams, publisher and treasurer of the Journal Company, who died March 22, 1911. He had an agreement with Mr. Hearst that he was to receive five per cent. of the profits of the Journal above $300,000 a year. A memorandum in Mr. Hearst's handwriting was submitted, to the effect that the net profit of the Journal for 1910, less all deductions, was $454,785. On the basis of the Hearst computation, the above-quoted value of the property is arrived at.

IN six years of revolutionary ferment and its aftermath, from December 7, 1905, to October 14, 1911, the Russian authorities have confiscated issues of newspapers and periodicals in 1055 cases, according to a booklet now issued by the Bureau of Press Affairs at the Ministry of the Interior. In 283 cases the issues confiscated were totally destroyed, and in twelve cases certain pages or articles were removed by order of the court. These figures refer only to confiscations which were subsequently approved by the courts, or were actually ordered by the district attorneys. Of 557 different publications subjected to confiscation of certain of their issues, 404 were in the Russian language. The confiscations occurred in forty cities. St. Petersburg leads, with 521 issues; Moscow, 102.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"THE ONE WAY TRAIL," by Ridgwell Cullum, author of "The Trail of the Axe," is just published by George W. Jacobs & Co.

THE CENTURY Co. has in press C. H. Claudy's "The Battle of Base-Ball," a book by a base-ball fan for other base-ball fans.

LEWIS GASTON LEARY, author of "The Real Palestine of To-day," is at work on his forthcoming book, "Andorra, the Hidden Republic," to be published in the spring by McBride, Nast & Company.

CHATTO & WINDUS announce a cheaper issue of Sir Walter Besant's four topographical books—"London," "Westminster," "East London," and "South London." The new edition will contain all the original illustrations.

A WOMAN who loses absolutely the memory of her past and begins life again with a new name and a different husband, is the heroine of "The Green Vase," by William R. Castle, Jr., to be published next week by Dodd, Mead & Co.

Two new biographies of George Borrow are soon to appear in England. One of these, written by Herbert Jenkins, will be issued by the descendant of Borrow's original publisher, John Murray; the other is the work of Edward Thomas.

THE spring announcements of the Griffith & Rowland Press include: "Seed Thoughts for Right Living," by Alvah S. Hobart; "India and the Daily Life of Bengal," by Rev. Z. F. Griffin; and "Only a Volcano," in Edwin J. Houston's Young Mineralogist Series.

ALFRED NOYES' new poetic drama, "Sherwood—Robin Hood and the Three Kings," published several months ago by Stokes, will be given by the girls of Wellesley College, as their annual commencement play, this year. It will be staged out of doors, with a woodland setting.

THE Beck Prize, awarded annually in Philadelphia for the best illustration of the year, has fallen to "A Child's Grace," by Jessie Willcox Smith. This is the frontispiece of "A Child's Book of Old Verses," published by Messrs. Duffield & Company, and illustrated in color by Miss Smith.

"THE LIFE OF WOODROW WILSON," by William Bayard Hale, contributing editor of The World's Work, whose biographical articles upon this Presidential candidate have been appearing recently, is set for book publication by Doubleday, Page & Co. early this spring.

THE BOSTON MUSIC COMPANY announce that they now represent Wilhelm Hansen, Copenhagen, publishers of music, as sole agents in the United States. They have also undertaken the sole representation of "Edition Schott" from Schott & Company, of Mainz, Germany.

IN "Joseph in Jeopardy," just published by the Macmillan Co., Frank Danby (Mrs. Frankau) has returned to fiction, happily not carrying out her determination of a year ago to resign from the ranks of active novelists. The author of "The Heart of a Child" and "Pigs in Clover" now writes a story of the problems of married life.

"PICKWICK," as is well known, contains some lapses, "oversights," contrarities, etc., owing to the haste and boisterous spirit of the writer. No true Pickwickian would wish a single one away. Messrs. Gay & Hancock are issuing a collection of these oddities, gathered by Percy Fitzgerald, who has already furnished some six treatises on "Pickwick."

THE following new editions are announced by B. W. Huebsch: Sudermann's "The Indian Lily," the third printing of which was practically sold before it was ready; Bishop Brent's "The Sixth Sense," which is going to press for a second time, though the book has been out but a few months; and Burgess's "Are You a Bromide?" the plates of which are worn and weary, for they make their ninth journey to the press.

AN enterprising person is Johnny Gamble, hero of George Randolph Chester's "Five Thousand an Hour," just published by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. When he finds a matter of a million dollars between him and his heart's desire—a certain Constance Joy—"Johnny" sets out to make a sudden fortune, and promotes everything from a twenty-story apartment house to a papier-maché comb—with results suggested in the title.

H. G. GADNEY, bookseller, of Oxford, England, is sending out an illustrated pamphlet describing the historic building, "Mitre Hotel," a part of which he occupies. Mr. Gadney shows to those interested in the "beginnings of Oxford" a number of unique relics, left undisturbed by the alterations necessary to this new phase in the "Mitre's" history. The ancient crypt, for instance, with its early English piers, has been fitted with bookshelves, with effective results.

THE Library of Congress has issued a "Select List of References on Parcels Post," a forty-page octavo pamphlet, compiled under the direction of Mr. Meyer, chief bibliographer. It is made up chiefly of references to the parcels-post question in this country, but includes descriptions and discussions of the parcels post in the more important European countries. Some eighty books and pamphlets are listed, besides references to 150 periodical articles. Annotated and indexed.

CHAPMAN & HALL, the English publishers of Charles Dickens' novels, report that the order of popularity of these stories, as indicated by their sales, is as follows: (1) "Tale of Two Cities," (2) "David Copperfield," (3) "Pickwick Papers," (4) "Nicholas Nickleby," (5) "Oliver Twist," (6) "Old Curiosity Shop," (7) "Martin Chuzzlewit." The firm sold 750,000 copies of the novels in 1911. On one of them, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," the publishers still retain a copyright.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD Co. will publish, April 1, "Dave Porter on Cave Island," by Edward Stratemeyer; "On the Trail of the Sioux," by D. Lange; "Classroom and Campus," by Warren L. Eldred; "The Children in the Little Old Red House," first volume in a new series, by Amanda M. Douglas, and "Prue's Little Friends," by Amy Brooks. Five new books will be added to the Oliver Optic series, and Amanda M. Douglas's novels, including twenty-four titles, will appear in a new illustrated edition.

THE English suffragettes are made the subject of several chapters in "Miss John Bull," which Houghton Mifflin Co. will publish next week. The author is Yoshio Markino, whose earlier book, "A Japanese Artist in London," was very favorably received. Mr. Markino has lived nearly half his life in England, and writes in a piquant style, but, of course, his point of view is that of a Japanese. He also illustrates the book with six full-page pictures in color and twenty pages of characteristic sketches.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY and William Heinemann of London, joint publishers of De Morgan's novels and "Jean Christophe," have just concluded arrangements by cable for Ralph Straus' "The Prison Without a Wall," which will appear here about March 23. Sylvanus de Bohun, a gentle, sensitive scholar, is the prisoner in the case, and the prison the willingly endured cloistering of Cambridge, of which he is a Fellow. Through a friend he hears the call of the world, and, like Queed, seeks to be more like other men—but with different results.

IN Duffield & Company's list of new fiction this spring are "The Gate of Horn," by Beulah Marie Dix; a new Joe Muller story by Augusta Groner, "Mene Tekel"; "The House of Robershay," by Emma Brooke, author of "Sir Elyot of the Woods," and "The Engrafted Rose"; and "The Woollen Dress," a translation of Henry Bordeaux's "La Robe de Laine." The same house, which has recently published a number of plays in book form, is bringing out in the series of Plays of To-day and Tomorrow, "The Waters of Bitterness," by S. M. Fox.

THE GEORGE H. DORAN Co. published on March 15th, two books by Arnold Bennett: "The Matador of the Five Towns," sixteen stories, some of which have appeared serially, and one or two of which have appeared in other volumes, representations of Mr. Bennett at his best, and "Polite Farces," a series of drawing-room plays, now first published in America. The success of Mr. Bennett's comedy, "The Honeymoon," and the enthusiasm attending the recent opening performance of his later comedy, "Milestones," done in collaboration with Edward Knablock, renders his dramatic work of more than ordinary interest.

THE spring juveniles of Cupples & Leon Co. include a new volume in the Motor Boys Series, by Clarence Young: "The Motor Boys on the Wing," "The Banner Boy Scouts: or, The Struggle for Leadership," first volume in The Banner Boy Scouts Series, by George A. Warren; the two initial volumes in the Base-Ball Joe Series, by Lester Chadwick; and "The Motor Girls on Cedar Lake; or, The Hermit of Fern Island," in Margaret Penrose's Motor Girls Series. This house will also publish "Standard Paper Bag Cookery," by Emma Paddock Telford, household editor of the Delineator.

AMONG the forthcoming publications of Moffat, Yard & Company will be a travel romance by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Wilby of New York. "On the Trail to Sunset" will have for its central feature the journey of an automobile across the United States. The scenes are plains and mountains—a Southwestern ranch, and the Great American Desert. The authors have themselves just returned from a record-breaking circular automobile tour of 9,000 miles. They started from New York on August 31st, and in 105 days had swung completely round the circle, not touching their trail again until they arrived on Broadway.

A LATER report of the rumored printing-plant merger to be made in New York City, notice of which was made in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of March 2, has it that an English promoter of the scheme has returned home with twenty "signed contracts in his trunk." The new syndicate is to be called the International Press, and, according to its attorney, will be "of vast benefit to publishers and the public generally." The present heads of the individual plants will be retained at "substantial salaries," will enter an agreement not to compete with the syndicate, and will put their stock in a voting trust for two years.

HARPER & BROTHERS' publications for April include "The Man in Lonely Land," by Kate Langley Bosher; "Eloquence: Thoughts and Counsel on the Art of Speaking," by George P. Serviss; "Harper's Boating Book for Boys," a guide to motor boating, canoeing and rowing, consulting editor, Charles G. Davis; "Europe and Its People," an introductory geographic reader for the fifth school year, by Will S. Monroe and Anna Buckbee; "The Wonderland of Geology," by Edwin J. Houston; "The Bantam," a novel, by Brewer Corcoran, and "A Captain Unafraid," the strange adventures of Dynamite Johnny O'Brien, as set down by Horace Smith.

IN "Marvels of Fish Life," by Francis Ward (Cassell & Company), the author turns to what he regards as a neglected field in nature study. "I have endeavored," he says, "to show how fish reveal to the observer their intentions and emotions by attitudes, movements and changes in color. I have described the eggs and the early life histories of a few of our commoner fishes, and how the adult fish is assisted in the battle for existence by concealing coloration and other devices. Finally, I have explained in detail how the various photographs shown have been obtained, in the hope that the information may be of assistance to those interested in fish photography." The volume is illustrated with over a hundred photographs from nature.

MARCH importations of Charles Scribner's Sons include "Japan of the Japanese," by Joseph H. Longford, a new volume in The Countries and Peoples Series; "Ranching, Sport and Travel," by Thomas Carson, a graphic account of the life of a cattle rancher; "The Unvarying East," by Rev. E. J. Hardy, author of "How to Be Happy Though Married," a description of modern scenes which are compared with the accounts in the ancient Scriptures; "Greece and Babylon," by Louis R. Farnell, a comparative sketch of Mesopotamian, Anatolian and Hellenic religions; "Elizabethan Interiors," by C. J. Charles, with numerous full-page photographic illustrations; "By Desert Ways to Bagdad," by Louisa Jebb (Mrs. Wilkinson), an account of travel and adventure in the Syrian Desert undertaken by two English ladies; and "The Artist at the Piano," by George Woodhouse, a contribution to the philosophy of pianistic art.

As the full significance of the Coptic library, purchased recently by J. Pierpont Morgan, becomes realized, the reason for American philological scholarship to grow enthusiastic over its acquisition is evident. Mr. Morgan is said to have paid Sheik Gabry $7000 each for fifty-seven volumes; they are understood, however, to be unique, and so really priceless. The collection is said to have formed the entire library of one of the most ancient monasteries of Egypt. Every volume of the fifty-seven is in excellent preservation, and together they throw an astonishing light on the religious ideas and general civilization of their period, and even on its art, for in many cases the pages are illuminated. The chief treasure is a complete Coptic Bible. Only one had hitherto been known to exist, and scholars have had to compile the text of the Coptic Scriptures from small fragments in various museums. Now students will be able to find in Mr. Morgan's library in New York exhaustive documents relating to what hitherto has been an obscure epoch.

"BEWARE of the beguiling book agent, is the burden of a song that cannot be too often chanted in the ears of both private buyers of books and library officials," says the Dial, editorially commenting on a paper on the subject recently read before the Illinois Library Association. "Subscription books, as has been repeatedly pointed out, should, as a class, be viewed with suspicion; and when the subscription book is offered by an agent the wise person becomes doubly suspicious. 'It is a fact,' says Miss Wilner, 'that the most expensive way of buying subscription books is to buy of the book agent. We all know how the bargain catalogues tell us of subscription sets, 'publishers' price, $150; our price, $80,' etc., etc. You may remember that in 1910 the Appleton Co. offered their New Practical Cyclopedia at $18 for the six volumes, selling only through book agents, but now they are selling the same work in the open market at $9.75.' The cajoleries of the modern salesman, trained in accordance with the latest psychological principles, as set forth by Professor Scott and others, are indeed hard to withstand; but a later opportunity to buy at a reduced price the temptingly offered subscription book of real worth will, in most cases, not be very long in presenting itself. Let us, then, harden ourselves to the blandishments of the sleek and plausible traveling salesman and patronize, as a rule, only our tried and trusty book dealer."

PICK-UPS.

OUR TRIPPING AUTHORS.

A LINE by W. J. Locke runs: "He talked incessantly all the time." Oh, Willyum!

Writes Arnold Bennett: "She won 15,000 francs in as many minutes." Pretty long session that!

Another novelist says: "Her eyes filled with silent tears." Generally they boom like billows, you know.

According to another, the hero "brushed her hair with his lips." Scarcely an improvement on the old method, we think.

Another writer remarks: "Charlotte von Stern was, when Goethe first met her, several years older than himself." But later, of course, 'twas otherwise.

"He rested his feet on the back of a chair, and blew smoke rings with half-closed eyes." We've seen it done with the mouth.

"Marjorie would often take her eyes from the deck and cast them far out to sea." As a caster, old Ike Walton had nothing on Margie, believe us!

"Speechless with horror and loathing, I tottered a helpless jelly against the jamb." We believe that the mess was cleaned up in the next chapter.—Boston Transcript.

By the author of "Buddha," "Christ and skepticism," etc. Contents: Character of the saints; Belief of the saints; Food of the saints; Unity of the saints; Example of the saints; Gift of the white stone; Gift of the morning star.

Andrews, Mary Raymond Shipman, [Mrs. W: Shankland Andrews.] The counsel assigned. N. Y., '12. c. 43 p. front. D. bds., 50 c. n.

New Lincoln story by the author of "The perfect tribute." This tells of him when he set aside a crucial political speech to come and plead in court for a lad held for murder, to whose parents he owed gratitude for past hospitality.

Benson, Ramsey. A knight in denim. N. Y., Scribner, '12. c. 307 p. D. $1.25 n.

"Knight in denim" is Bill Harbaugh, "one of that vast body of soldiery which wonderfully melted back into civil life at the close of the great war." How he adopted the Nebraska farming community which is the background of the story, and became the oddest of its oddities; how he played the part of man of all work and knight in denim to his lady, the mistress of Throstlewood Farm, are told with humor and pathos that should have a wide appeal. By author of "Lord of the lands," "Melchisedec," etc.

Blue (The) book of chess; teaching the rudiments of the game, and giving an analysis of all the recognized openings; il. by appropriate games actually played by Morphy, Harrwitz, Andersen, Staunton, Evans, Montgomery and others; including Lasker, Steinitz, Schlechter, Pillsbury, and other recent players. Rev. ed. based on the work of Staunton and modern authorities. Phil., Winston. c. '70-'10. 256 p. D. (Blue book ser.) 75 c.

Formerly published by Porter & Coates.

Borrow, G: H: The life of George H. Borrow; compiled from unpublished official documents, his works, correspondence, etc., by Herb. Jenkins; with a front. in photogravure, and 12 other illustrations. N. Y., Putnam, '12. 28+496 p. O. $3.50 n.

Covers seven years (1833-1840). George Borrow was employed by the British and Foreign Bible Society in Russia, Portugal and Spain. He speaks of the period spent in Spain as the "five happiest years" of his life. Heretofore the records of this period have been inaccessible, but in this biography a wealth of unpublished documents and information has been procured. Index.

Bosanquet, Bernard. The principle of individuality and value; the Gifford Lectures for 1911 delivered in Edinburgh University. N. Y., Macmillan, '12. 37+409 p. O. $3.25 n.

Course presents the principle of individuality—self-completeness—as the clue to reality and value, and considers its relation to general law, teleology, freedom, and the connection of nature and the self in absolute reality. Some of the lectures are reprinted from magazines, and, after the table of contents, the abstracts of the lectures prepared for the daily press are given. Author is Fellow of the British Academy, and has written "Psychology of the moral self," "Essentials of logic," etc.

Bradford, Harry B. An artist at the zoo; il. with 60 drawings from life, by the author. Phil., Westminster Press, '11. 15+189 p. D. $1 n.

Contents: Trials in animal drawing; Boarding at the zoo; Large citizen; Two small citizens; Fox family; Deer family; Monarch of by-gone days, etc.

Braithwaite, W: C. The beginnings of Quakerism; with introd. by Rufus M. Jones. N. Y., Macmillan, '12. 44+562 p. O. $4 n.

Author is president of the Woodbrooke Settlement, Selly Oak, near Birmingham. In writing this history, use has been made of Ms. and printed materials in the library of the Society of Friends, Devonshire House, Bishopsgate, E. C.; also to the publications of the Friends' Historical Society. There is a map of the Preston Patrick district, intended to assist Friends and others who desire to visit for themselves the places in this district whose historical associations are recorded in these pages. Author has written "Quakerism in the Restoration period." Appendix. Index.

Author is professor of pure and applied mathematics in the University College of North Wales, formerly fellow of Peterhouse, Cambridge, and has written books on mathematics. Contents: Fundamental principles; General considerations regarding symmetrical derivatives; Graphic statics of longitudinal equilibrium; Longitudinal stability of single-lifting systems; Double lifting systems; Lateral stability; Problems, notes, nomenclature, notations.

Bryant, Marguerite. The adjustment. N. Y., Duffield, '12. c. 506 p. front. D. $1.35 n.

Christina Massendon's mother and father had separated just before her birth, and it was only when her mother had to leave her with relatives in London while she goes to care for a sick relative that Christina learns of her father's existence and his wife's hope of a reunion. Christina meets her father and later finds that he is the man who has caused the ruin of the man she loves when he was still a boy. It is only after marriage that Christina and her husband discover the identity of her father and the knowledge causes their separation. In the end all is made right, but it is only after much suffering and trial.

Butler, Eliz. Beardsley. Saleswomen in mercantile stores, Baltimore, 1909. N. Y., Charities Publication Comm., '12. c. 5-15+217 p. forms. tabs. pls. O. (Russell Sage Foundation, pubs.) $1; pap., 75 c.

Author of "Women and the trades" writes a book on the conditions and pay of saleswomen in the Baltimore shops. It will be suggestive to other cities, and is an example of fair and careful work. Appendix. Index.

Carson, T: Ranching, sport and travel; with 16 illustrations. N. Y., Scribner. 316 p. O. $3 n.

Book is in the nature of an autobiography, as it covers about the whole of the author's life. It is mostly devoted to cattle ranching in Arizona. New Mexico and Texas, and includes a record of travels abroad and a chapter devoted to a description of tea-planting in India.

Chester, G: Randolph. Five thousand an hour; how Johnny Gamble won the heiress; il. by H: Raleigh. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill. c. 366 p. D. $1.25 n.

Johnny Gamble with his last one hundred dollars in his pocket meets Constance Joy on the race-course in Baltimore. Johnny makes up his mind he must have her, and he stakes his last dollar on "Angora," hoping to win. As a result of this he has $5,000 in his pocket, and his friends estimate that if he earns money at that rate he will be worth a million in forty days. Johnny says he will be worth that much in the time mentioned, and inside another hour clears $17,000 in a real estate deal. Of course he wins.

Cooper, Clayton Sedgwick. World-wide Bible study. Phil., Sunday Sch. Times Co. c. 10+234 p. pls. D. $1 n.

Cullum, Ridgwell. The one-way trail; a story of the cattle country. Phil., G. W. Jacobs, '11. c. 415 p. O. $1.25 n.

Story of the cattle country. Jim Thorpe and his cousin, Will Henderson, both love the same girl. The latter wins her through a trick, but soon after their marriage he abuses her and spends all his time drinking and gambling. He resents Jim's trying to help him for the girl's sake, and in revenge brands another man's cattle with Jim's brand, so that he may be considered a cattle thief. Eve's brother knows who the real thief is, and tells the sheriff. Jim warns Will, but before the latter can escape he is killed, and at last Jim and Eve are happy together. The tale is full of tense situations.

Cushing, Luther Stearns. The blue book of parliamentary law; rules of proceeding and debate in deliberative assemblies. New ed., with many additional notes by Alb. S. Bolles, including the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. Phil., Winston. c. '01-'07. 239 p. D. (Blue book ser.) 75 c.

Formerly published by Henry T. Coates & Co. See American catalog, 1900-'04, v. 2, '01.

De Navarro, Antonio. Causeries on English pewter. N. Y., Scribner. 17+96 p. pls. O. (Country life lib.) $3.50 n.

Number of these essays have appeared in Country Life. The main object of the book is to dissipate the belief that the pewterer's art was essentially bourgeois. Dates attached to the illustrations are those indicated by the marks, where that has been possible. Where the mark fails an approximate date is given, and this has been arrived at by the style and period which the piece represents.

Dickens, C: Charles Dickens as editor: being letters written by him to William Henry Wills, his sub-editor; selected and ed. by R. H. Lehmann. N. Y., Sturgis & W., '12. 16+404 p. pors. O. $3.25 n.

Letters written by Charles Dickens to William Henry Wills, who first became closely connected with him at the time of the foundation of the Daily News in 1846, and was afterwards for nearly twenty years his sub-editor on Household Words and All the Year Round. With the exception of a few these letters are all new. The photographs here reproduced were formerly in the possession of Dudley Costello, one of the actors in the "Guild" performances, 1851, and a contributor to Household Words. Index.

Fabre, Jean Henri. The life and love of the insect; tr. by Alex. Teixeira de Mattos. N. Y., Macmillan, '11. 10+262 p. pls. D. $1.75 n.

Maeterlinck speaks of the author of these essays as "one of the most profound and inventive scholars . . . of the century that is just past." Born in Sérignan, Provence, in 1823, his birthday is now celebrated annually. He is still alive, and the present book is a translation of the greater part of a volume of selected essays with, in addition, three that appeared in another volume.

Kimball, E: The dominant chord; with a front. in full color from a painting by W: Bunting. Bost., L. C. Page '12. c. '11-'12. 319 p. D. $1.25 n.

Alice Huntington, a rich New York girl, is abducted about a week before she is to marry the Duke of Buckminster. She is drugged and carried on board a yacht and when she comes to herself the boat is at sea. Gordon Craig, engineer and inventor, is responsible for the affair, because, as he explains to Alice, he has loved her for three years and does not mean her to marry the Duke. The yacht is run by electricity and can go under water as well as above the surface. For weeks they cruise about, searched for by war-vessels in all directions, and after many adventures Alice surrenders and she and Craig are happy.

King, H: Churchill, D.D. Rational living; some practical references from modern psychology. N. Y., Macmillan, '12. c. '05. 17+271 p. D. (Macmillan standard lib.) 50 c. n.

By president of Oberlin College, author of "Reconstruction in theology," "Theology and the social consciousness," etc. Writer makes four inferences from modern psychology with suggestions for life and character, and they form the subjects of the main divisions of entire inquiry. (1) Life is complex; (2) man is a unity; (3) will and action are of central importance; (4) the real is concrete. Index.

Nicholson, Meredith. A Hoosier chronicle; with il. by F. C. Yohn. Bost., Houghton Mifflin, '12. c. 7+605 p. D. $1.40 n.

A story of Indiana life during the last fifteen years. The charming, vigorous girl who is the heroine; the Yale man who passes from newspaper work to the law, and engages in politics in the Hoosier capital; the old lady who makes a success of a stock farm; a new order of boss who wields great political power through his personal charm—all are involved in a situation combining dramatic personal relations with significant attitudes towards public affairs.

Peile, Ja. Hamilton Fs. The sacrament of repentance; a devotional and practical commentary on the fifty-first psalm. N. Y., Longmans, '12. 10+110 p. S. 90 c. n.

By the Archdeacon of Warwick, author of "Reproach of the Gospel," "Ecclesia discens." The chapters of this book have grown out of Lenten addresses originally given at St. Stephen's Church, Paddington, and in All Saints, Ennismore Gardens, London.

Perry, Arth. Cecil, jr. Outlines of school administration. N. Y., Macmillan, '12. c. 8+452 p. (10 p. bibl.) D. $1.40 n.

Text-book in study of school administration, reviewing the systems of the United States, Germany, France, Great Britain and Ireland, by the author of "Management of a city school," "Problems of the elementary school," etc. Index.

"Princess (The)," pseud. Traveller's tales; told in letters from Belgium, England, Scotland, France, and Spain; with 21 illustrations. N. Y., Putnam, '12. c. 12+296 p. O. $2.

The larger part of these letters appeared in the columns of the Springfield Republican. They tell of the pleasant wanderings of the "Laird," the "Child," and the "Princess," illustrated by unique and artistic photographs.

Puffer, J. Adams. The boy and his gang. Bost., Houghton Mifflin. c. 11+187 p. pls. D. $1 n.

Author is director of Beacon Vocation Bureau, Boston. He says: "Sixty-six boys who were members of gangs are responsible for this book. They told me the stories of their gang life, and I wrote them out and presented them in the Pedagogical Seminary for June, 1905. Later they became the basis for a series of lectures on boy problems. I have found a wide interest in and demand for such a book as this—bearing upon the group psychology of boyhood—and a lamentable scarcity of readable literature on the subject."

Quin, Malcolm. Catholicism and the modern mind; a contribution to religious unity and progress. N. Y., Longmans, '12. 23+294 p. O. $2.10 n.

Author says: "When I speak of the 'Catholic Church,' I do not use these words in the vague and confusing sense which is now so often given them; I use them to denote that church whose acknowledged center is Rome, and whose administrative head is the Pope." Index.

Ravenel, S. W. Ravenel's road primer for school children; comp. and prepared at the request of the national chairman "Good Roads for Child Welfare Department," National Congress of Mothers, being the elementary principles and practices of road-making, the causes and effects of good roads, their location, grades, drainage, maps and profiles, [etc.] Chic., McClurg, '12. c. 159 p. il. Woodhouse, G. The artist at the piano (the art of musical interpretation). [N. Y., Scribner.] 51 p. por. O. $1 n.

Short essays on the art of musical interpretation, of which Paderewski says: "A really valuable contribution to the philosophy of pianistic art."

Woodrow, Nancy Mann Waddel, [Mrs. Wilson Woodrow.] Sally Salt; with il. by D. Robinson. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill. c. 349 p. D. $1.25 n.

Sally Salt is a widow, young, vital and unconventional. She manages her farm, takes care of all the poor and helpless that she comes in contact with, and is just a bit dictatorial. Another charming young widow lives with her, and they both have love stories which make the book's interest.

Worden, J. L., and others. The "Monitor" and the "Merrimac"; both sides of the story. N. Y., Harper, '12. c. 11+72 p. front. D. 50 c. n.

Officers who actually took part in the famous battle on each side tell the story from their own experience.

Index to Spring Announcements.

In this department the announcement of books to be published during the Spring season are indexed under author and title, with as much information as publishers were ready to give in advance of publication. Books appearing before February 1 in our "Weekly Record of New Publications" are not included. The omission of titles of prominent publishers is only due to the fact that such publishers failed to respond to request for information.

Where binding is not stated the books are generally understood to be in cloth binding; "bds.," particularly in the department of Juvenile fiction, generally means illuminated or fancy board covers.

The Publishers' Weekly

Subscription Rates

One year, postage prepaid in the United States, $4.00; foreign, $5.00.
Single copies, 10 cents. Educational Number, in leatherette, 50 cents; Christmas Bookshelf, 25 cents.

Advertising Rates

One page.....	$25 00
Half page.....	14 00
Quarter page.....	7 00
Eighth page.....	4 00
One-sixteenth page.....	2 00

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred position (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading, Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier, if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday noon.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" booktrade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, repeated matter, and all advertisements from nonsubscribers cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privilege of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

FICTION AND PLAYS

Beulah Marie Dix's THE FIGHTING BLADE

By the author of "The Making of Christopher Ferringham," "Allison's Lad," etc.
Probable price $1.25 net. [Late March.]

A dramatic tale of literary distinction. It is of Cromwell's time, and has a strong love interest. The author made a distinct success in this field with her Allison's Lad and Other Martial Interludes, which the Boston Transcript said "Lives in the memory . . . Noble passion holding the balance between life and death." The hero is a quiet, boyish, German soldier of fortune, who loves a little tom-boy Royalist heiress, and proves himself at bottom heroic and self-sacrificing.

Ralph Straus's THE PRISON WITHOUT A WALL

Sylvanus de Bohun, a gentle sensitive scholar, is the prisoner who willingly endured the cloistering of Cambridge, of which he is a Fellow. He hears the call of the World, and, like Queed, seeks to be more like other men—but with different results. He experiences London Bohemian and otherwise, and both love and treachery. Probable price, $1.30 net. [March 23d.]

Dorothy Canfield's THE SQUIRREL CAGE

A novel of life in a Middle Western town, with a strong love interest, that has won much praise during its serial appearance. Considerable parts of the book did not appear in the magazine. Illustrated by J. A. WILLIAMS. $1.35 net. [March 30th.]

Donal Hamilton Haines' THE RETURN OF PIERRE

A Tale of 1870. Prominent figures are Pierre—a country lad—the woman Pierre loves, her father, a fine old Colonel of Dragoons—and a German spy, not without attractive qualities. Striking scenes, including the discovery and escape of the spy—the remorse of a French General, or the men he has lost—night in a hospital tent—the last flicker of the defense of Paris—the entry of the German troops, etc. With a frontispiece from a panel of Detaille's "Le Chant du Depart." $1.25 net.

L. P. Jacks' AMONG THE IDOLMAKERS

By the Editor of "The Hibbert Journal," author of "Mad Shepherds," "The Alchemy of Thought." Stories of very unusual quality much in the vein of "Mad Shepherds." $1.35 net.

R. Macaulay's VIEWS AND VAGABONDS

A well born educated young Englishman of "advanced" views (a blacksmith and the husband of a working girl both from a sense of duty), some friends with "views," and a pair of lovable young vagabonds without a troublesome idea in their heads are thrown together. $1.35 net. [March 30th.]

Constance D'Arcy Mackay's PATRIOTIC PLAYS AND PAGEANTS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

By the author of "The House of the Heart" and "The Silver Thread." (Plays for Young People and Schools.) 12mo. Probable price, $1.35 net. [March 23d.]

NON- FICTION

Vernon L. Kellogg's BEYOND WAR

An untechnical sketch of the natural history of man; involving a strong plea for peace. The author's Darwinism Today is already in its fifth printing. Probable price, $1.00 net. [March 30th.]

THE WORLD'S LEADERS. Edited by Prof. W. P. Trent

Volumes on THE POETS, by H. W. BOYNTON; and THE PAINTERS, by G. B. ROSE [March 30th]; and THE CONQUERORS, by W. L. BEVAN [May]. Probable price per volume, $1.75 net.

Duffield Osborn's ENGRAVED GEMS

Signets, Talismans and Oriental Intaglios of all times. By the author of "The Lion's Brood," editor of Livy's "Roman History," etc. With 32 plates figuring 700 gems, and numerous line drawings. Large 8vo. About 350 pp. Probable price, $6.00 net. [April 30th.]

Grant Allen's HISTORICAL GUIDES

Further Volumes: SMALLER TUSCAN TOWNS—UMBRIAN TOWNS, by J. W. and A. M. CRUICKSHANK [March 23d]. CITIES OF BELGIUM [April]. Per volume, $1.50 net.

Collins and Preston's ILLUSTRATED KEY to the WILD AND COMMONLY CULTIVATED TREES

Of the Northeastern United States and Adjacent Canada. By J. FRANKLIN COLLINS, Assistant Professor of Botany, Brown University, and HOWARD W. PRESTON. With 278 illustrations, pocket size. Probable price, $1.25 net clo., $2.50 net lea. [April 6th.]

Being the Authorized Version of 1611. With the Text Carefully Amended by American Scholars.

A Bible That Has Met With Most Unusual Favor

READ THE FOLLOWING EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS:—

"We believe, unqualifiedly, that the 1911 Bible is far the best translation ever given the English-speaking people, and the worthiest of their confidence and affection."—The Herald and Presbyter, September 13, 1911.

"We welcome the version and it has captured us."

—The Presbyterian of the South, Oct. 11, 1911.

"Has all the merits of the 1611 version and fewer of its textual disadvantages."

—S. S. Times, Oct. 14, 1911.

"We have only commendation for it."—The Living Church, Dec. 9, 1911.

"We feel certain that the 1911 Bible is the best version extant in English."

The Epworth Era, Oct. 19, 1911.

"The 1911 Bible will soon be accepted as the most desirable edition of our commonly accepted English Bible."—The Watchman, Sept. 7, 1911.

Prices from $1.25 up. Full descriptive circular on request.

THE FULL RECOGNITION OF JAPAN.

VI. The Temple Flute Player and the Tomb-Piper.

THE FAIRY FAITH IN CELTIC COUNTRIES. By W. Y. EVANS WENTZ. 8vo. Cloth. $4.15.

"The alluring title is fully borne out by the contents. . . . By far the larger and more valuable part of the available information about the 'fairy faith' is, or was until the appearance of this volume, 'unedited.' . . . One of the revelations of this volume shows how extensively and persistently living a faith it is. And it is by no means confined to the ignorant. . . . But the holders of it are increasingly shy of discussing it in the presence of an increasing number of incredulous strangers. Mr. Wentz could have amassed his stores of data only by the method he adopted of sojourning for long periods among the fairy faithful."

—N. Y. Sun, Jan. 28, 1912.

By Rev. CHARLES ROADS

Author of Abnormal Christians and The Rural Church.

Cloth, $1.25 net, postage extra.

Dr. Roads is becoming well known as a prober into the psychology of the soul, and in his Abnormal Christians he touched a very sensitive spot in the life of the Church of to-day. In THE MAN WITH A CONSCIENCE he goes still deeper into the personal element, conveying a very stirring message.

An Artist at the Zoo

By HARRY B. BRADFORD

Illustrated with 60 drawings from life.

Cloth, $1.00 net, $1.09 postpaid.

Many an unusual piece of work goes unnoticed because no one understands with what care it has been wrought. In justice to the author and illustrator of this book of animal portraiture, we wish to explain that the drawings were made from living models at an expense of time and patience which no one who has not attempted such a feat can realize. The result is real portraiture, not artistic guess-work; and many of the animals pictured may be seen to-day, just as they were drawn, in the Washington Zoological Park, where Uncle Sam keeps a family of thirteen hundred animals scattered, more or less, over its one hundred and seventy acres.

THE HEART OF THE BIBLE

FOR YOUNG PEOPLE, PARENTS AND TEACHERS

Edited by ELLA BROADUS ROBERTSON

This book gives a complete grasp of the whole Bible, and tells all the principal stories and events of the Bible in their historical order, told in the language of the Bible itself, using the text of the AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION. The idea was suggested to the author by the desire of her children for Bible stories, "just as they are in the Bible."

Printed from large easy-reading type, with 8 full-page colored illustrations and 16 full-page black and white illustrations. Size, 5 x 7½ inches.

Bound in cloth, attractive cover, $1.00 net. Limp leather, gold top, $1.50 net.

The American Standard Bible

Edited and Revised by the American Revision Committee, 1901, is the best version of the English Bible ever produced because it is translated from the oldest and most authentic manuscripts in existence by the greatest Biblical Scholars that the world has ever known.

The paragraphic division is recognized as an indisputable merit because it brings the reader closer to the original message. Made in all styles. Prices from 35 cents up.

THE DRUNKARD

By GUY THORNE

Author of "When It Was Dark"

A powerful novel written by a man of the world for men and women of the world. Through its hero the psychology of the inebriate is laid bare. To the general reader it is a strong story of deep human appeal. To men and women to whom drunkenness is a painful personal and social problem it is the scientific and sympathetic revelation of the physical and mental state of the drunkard, which makes help for him possible.

Cloth. 12mo. $1.35 net.

CHARLES DICKENS AS EDITOR

Some four hundred letters, almost all of them hitherto unpublished, of Charles Dickens. Edited by R. C. LEHMAN of "Punch."

This most important of the Dickens Centenary publications contains some 400 letters of the great novelist, all but a handful of them heretofore unpublished, and all of them written at the most interesting period of his life. They give his intimate, unreserved opinions on literary men and the events of the time, and on things in general. Piquant, humorous; entertaining to the general reader, and informing to the literary historian.

Cloth. Crown 8vo. Illustrated. $3.25 net.

JACONETTA STORIES

By FANNIE HEASLIP LEA

Author of "Quicksands"

Stories of the affairs of the heart of the brilliant and witty Jacoquetta. Jacoquetta's great affair with a wary young cynic binds them all together. A handbook for the flirtatious. Sparkling dialogue, clever and charming people, and the ceaseless play of wit combine to entertain the reader.

Cloth. 12mo. Illustrated by Foster. $1.00 net.

LIFE STORY OF J. PIERPONT MORGAN

By CARL HOVEY

This biography is a scrupulously accurate story of Mr. Morgan's life and his great achievements in the world of business, and a study of a commanding personality.

Cloth. Crown 8vo. Illustrated. $2.50 net.

THE LIFE OF NIETZSCHE

By Mrs.

Vol. I. The Young Nietzsche

FOERSTER NIETZSCHE

This book (now first published), by the devoted and accomplished sister of the subject of it, will supersede all other lives of the philosopher, for it draws upon all available sources, including the author's remarkable memory; is intimate, carefully accurate, and engrossing as a biography; and is fully competent as an account of Nietzsche's philosophy.

Cloth. Crown 8vo. Illustrated. $4.00 net.

THE GENETIC PHILOSOPHY OF EDUCATION

By G. E. PARTRIDGE, Ph.D.

With an Introduction by President G. STANLEY HALL

INDIA AND THE DAILY LIFE IN BENGAL

By REV. Z. F. GRIFFIN

Doctor Griffin spent fifteen years in India and most of the time in Bengal as a missionary of the Free Baptist Mission Society. This book deals only indirectly with missionary operations but directly with the country, its prospects, its government, its people, its customs, and the daily life that is lived in that land of teeming millions and much mystery. $1.00 net.

ONCE A VOLCANO

By EDWIN J. HOUSTON

This is the fifth volume of Prof. Houston's "Young Mineralogist Series." It is not less interesting than those that have preceded it nor does it fall behind in useful information. Some of the features of the extinct volcanoes that abound in the southwestern regions of the United States are considered with especial reference to one of the most conspicuous of them—Mount Taylor. $1.25.
